TROOPS REVOLT IN HONAN, WU PEI-FU QUELLING MUTINY

Changtefu Is Ransacked By Rebels Reinforced By Local Bandits

RAILWAY IS SUSPENDED

Foodstuffs And Funds Owned By Famine Relief Are Not Touched

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, April 19.—Reuter's correspondent at Kaifeng telegraphs under yesterday's date, stating that Colonel Sun and the soldiers who revolted last Thursday owing to his dismissal broke through the gates of Changtefu last night and sacked the city. It is reported that only three large establishments escaped looting (two of them being the Bank of Communications and the cotton factory) and that these are in the hands of the rebels. A large sum of money belonging to the Famine Relief Fund is at present deposited at the bank in question.

The disaffected soldiers do not number more than fifteen hundred, but it is feared that robbers have joined them. They proceeded southwards along the Peking-Hankow Railway with the intention of reaching Kaifeng, but General Wu Pei-fu's soldiers stopped them at Singsiang, and retiring they cut the railway at Luwangfete, twenty-five li north of Singsiang whither General Wu's troops are moving in order to quell the revolt speedily. It is feared that Nanyang and other places where there are disaffected soldiery may also experience trouble.

The two persons held to be chiefly responsible for the disturbance are General Chen Shen and Colonel Sun, though it is reported that a small clique of militarists fomented the trouble from Peking.

A later despatch from Kaifeng states that the trouble at Changtefu has subsided and that the disturbance is now confined to the region of Weihweifu. Trains from the North only travel as far as Chihsien.

The grain and funds belonging to the Famine Relief have not been touched.

Cars have been commandeered and troops mobilised from all parts of the Province out of all proportion to the immediate cause of the trouble.

British Women To Be Barred From Many Government Jobs

(Reuter's Service)

London, April 18.—In consequence of the passing of the Sex Disqualification. Removal Act of 1919, the Civil Service Commissioners have issued regulations reserving to men all posts in the following services overseas, other than posts for which women may be specially recruited: diplomatic and consular services, Government services of colonies and protectorates to which appointments are made in the United Kingdom and His Majesty's Civil Services in India. All posts in the commercial, diplomatic and trade commissioner services are also reserved to men, except the chief clerkships in the trade commissioners' offices.

Women Flock To Clergyman's Trial

(Reuter's Service)

London, April 18.—Extraordinary scenes marked the closing stages today of Archdeacon Wakeford's appeal against the sentence of the Lincoln Consistory Court depriving him of all emoluments in connection with his rank on the ground of adultery. A crowd, composed chiefly of well-dressed women, besieged the entrance to the court room and struggled wildly for admission.

The evidence at the past few hearings has been most conflicting and bewildering. Sir Edward Carson, counsel for the defence, today made an eloquent final address, in which he dissected the prosecution's evidence with a view to showing that the statements of many witnesses were mendacious and otherwise entirely untrustworthy. He submitted that the hotel books were dishonest, and that the woman with whom the Archdeacon was alleged to have committed adultery was a myth.

Mr. Douglas Hogg replied for the prosecution. The court has deferred its judgement until April 26.

Municipal Orchestra Leader Leaves Today

Mario Paci

Two years ago when the few straggling individuals of the Shanghai public attended the Sunday afternoon concert by the Municipal orchestra, they had a reason. In the winter time they went to escape the cold of the streets; in the spring they went to break the monotony of walking in the rain.

Last Sunday over 1,700 music lovers attended the concert, and many more hundreds were turned away. The stage was banked with floral offerings of the admiring public. A gift of a shield was made to the Conductor, Maestro Mario Paci, in appreciation of his efforts at building up a real symphony orchestra.

Today Prof. Paci is leaving Shanghai. He is going to Italy, France and Holland—for instruments, for new music, for leaders for every section of the Municipal orchestra. Upon his return he expects to reorganise the Municipal orchestra into the finest symphony orchestra in the East.

Prof. Paci's leaving recalls his great work for Shanghai's music-loving public. He was touring the Straits and the East in 1919, as a piano virtuoso when he first came to Shanghai. He gave three concerts here, in one of which he worked in collaboration with the famed pianist, Mirovitch, and the great violinist, Piastro, both of whom are now in America. It was the first time in the East that two pianists appeared in the same concert. Maestro Paci conducted.

At this time the Municipal orchestra had fallen into an extremely bad position. Under the leadership of the German, Prof. Book it had fared well, until China's declaration of war in 1916 and the departure of the leader with several of his musicians. The orchestra was barely struggling along when Prof. Paci gave his concerts here. A proposition was made that he should remain and build up the orchestra so that Shanghai again might have a serving of first class music. The professor was willing; he thought it an opportunity to show his ability as an organiser and a conductor. He accepted.

In these musically dark days the orchestra numbered 22 people. Today it numbers 45. The older players for the most part are still in the organization. The others were specially selected by the Maestro from the many smaller orchestras in the city.

Maestro Paci was in a happy mood when called upon yesterday by a representative of THE CHINA PRESS. Standing in the midst of his baggage, labelled for the steamer Trieste, he held in one hand a communication from the Municipal Council, confirming his appointment as conductor of the settlement orchestra. In the other was a bundle of photographs.

"I am happy today," he said. "I have just received confirmation of my appointment as conductor. It gives me a free hand in the development of the orchestra. I can now go to Europe and conduct the business of building up our organisation, of procuring new instruments, of replenishing our depleted music library, with a feeling of freedom and confidence. I shall make the Shanghai orchestra second to none."

"And the photographs?" he was asked.

They were of his wife and little girl, now in Amsterdam. They came in yesterday's mail. "They don't know yet that I am coming," Prof. Paci said, and he held up for admiration the photos of his beautiful Holland wife, and healthy baby girl.

Italy, France and Holland will be searched for their best talent for Shanghai's orchestra, Prof. Paci said yesterday. Nine leaders of music—one for each section of the big orchestra will be brought back. It is expected that Italy and Holland will produce most of these nine men. With Germany closed it falls to the two named countries to supply the music for the world. "Yet," he said, "the closing of

CHINA'S ENVOY TO LEAGUE TO FIGHT ON 3 BIG ISSUES

To Oppose Article 21 Of Covenant, Anglo-Jap Pact, And Lansing-Ishii Notes

SAYS JAPS AIM AT WAR

Making Marine Mines And Maping Chinese Coast, Wang Chung-Hui Declares

(Reuter's Service)

Vancouver, April 18.—Mr. Wang Chung-hui, the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of China, has arrived here on his way to Geneva, in connection with the Committee entrusted with revising the League Covenant. He intends to spend a month in North America, during which he will visit Ottawa and Washington, and learn the official attitude in those capitals on the international issues of the present day.

In the course of an interview Mr. Wang declared that China had three enemies, of whom Japan was not one. The first enemy was Article 21 of the League Convenant. This lays down the doctrine—an untenable one in his opinion—of so-called regional understandings, which he regards as a direct challenge to China's integrity and destructive of the League itself.

The second enemy he considers to be the Anglo-Japanese Alliance, which, he hopes to show the people of Canada, if renewed in any form, will lead to a war, in which China will be bound to participate on the side of the United States.

He regards as the third enemy the Lansing-Ishii Notes, on the ground that they uphold the untenable doctrine that geographical propinquity confers rights.

Mr. Wang emphasised China's determination to force these issues, declaring that China's anxiety in regard to the Pacific question had been deepened by the recent discovery that Japan was manufacturing large quantities of marine mines, and that she had also marked the Chinese coast into blockade zones, in order to control raw materials in the event of a war.

COUNCIL MEETS TRAM OFFICIALS AGAIN TOMORROW

Discussions Between French Municipality And Utilities' Representatives Continue

There will be another conference between the French Municipal Council and Mr. L. Bridou, representing the French public utilities company, regarding the improved service and extensions which the Municipality has demanded. It is understood that the company is showing a tractable spirit, but some of the problems, particularly that of water supply, present a good deal of difficulty and several meetings will probably have to be devoted to the discussions.

Panama May Have To Fight 4 Nations

Washington, April 18.—It is officially stated that the Central American Union of Guatemala, Honduras and Salvador, has undertaken to declare war simultaneously with Costa Rica against Panama should Costa Rica deem such action necessary in connection with her boundary dispute with Panama.

Washington, April 18.—It is officially stated that the United States will not tolerate the resumption of hostilities between Panama and Costa Rica.

RAILWAY INTERRUPTED

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Hankow, April 18.—The Peking-Hankow Railway is interupted. The cause is reported to be fighting which occurred yesterday between General Wu Fei-fu's trops and those of the Tuchun of Honan, between Weihweifu and Changte Ho.

It is believed that the trouble has not spread to Paotingfu.

JAPAN SAYS YAP ISSUE JUSTIFIES MILITARY POLICY

Military Administration Of Pacific Islands To Hold Until Decision

ASK ACTION BY LEAGUE

American Position, Defined In Notes, Stirs Opposition In Tokio

(U. S. Navy Radio through Reuter)

New York, April 18.—A telegram from Tokio states: "Observers report the existence of a sharp division of opinion in regard to the Pacific Islands. It is argued that the agreement on this subject, as a collateral of the Peace Treaty, is valid, in the same way as the decision regarding the disposal of the German warships. It is also noted that the United States failed to protest when the decision upon the mandates was published.

"The Kokumin Shimbun predicts that Japan will seek to satisfy America by settling the Yap controversy separately.

"Professor Uesugi, of the Imperial University, in the course of an article, declares that, should Japan comply with the American demands, it would be the greatest disgrace since the return of the Liao-tung Province to China.

"According to official information, the Japanese Government is still consulting with the Allies. The Teikoku News Agency quotes a Cabinet Minister as declaring that Japan should reply to America by saying that she would follow the decision of the League of Nations, and has no right to act by herself. These questions should, therefore, be settled between the League and America.

"Professor Hayashi, a councillor of the Foreign Office, is also quoted as declaring that America should approach the League, as Japan has no right to interfere with its decision. Until the Yap controversy is settled, he added, Japan must maintain her military administration in the Pacific Islands."

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, April 18.—The correspondence between the United States and Japan regarding the island of Yap is now published.

Secretary of State Hughes' note of April 5, in which he argued that the United States had lost none of its rights as one of the victors over Germany, and which has already been published, was in reply to the Japanese note of February 26, in which Japan agreed that it was not sufficient merely to establish the fact that ex-President Wilson had made reservations regarding Yap. It must be further shown that the Supreme Council decided to favor those views. The note added that if the Supreme Council had really decided against Japan at the meeting on May 7, at which Japan was not represented, that was an act of absolutely bad faith.

Mr. Hughes' note is identical with the note sent to the other Powers, which has already been published, except for the opening sentences in which he refuses to admit the necessity for the endorsement of President Wilson's reservations by the Supreme Council and declared that if Japan's contention means that the United States would be bound by the decision of the Supreme Council without its consent, such a contention is inadmissible. Moreover, the note points out, the United States never assented to a mandate embracing the island of Yap.

U.S. March Exports, $384,000,000

(Reuter's Service)

Washington April 18.—The exports of the United States for March were valued at $384,000,000, including $700,000 in gold. The imports amounted to $250,000,000, including $106,000,000 in gold.

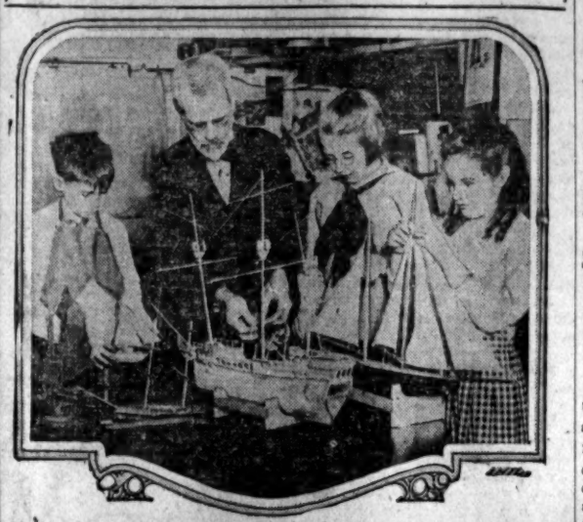
FIGHTING IN ITALY

(U. S. Navy Radio through Reuter)

New York, April 18.—According to a Rome dispatch, the disturbances in various parts of Italy during the electoral campaign have included street fighting, revolver duels and the looting of buildings. In the suburbs of Bologna 50 fascisti occupied the Socialist headquarters, whence the Socialists fled. The Carabineers tried to persuade the fascisti to desist. Feeling continues to run high.

(Note.—The fascisti or members of Fasci di Combattimenti, Leagues of Combatants. These are anti-Socialist organisations which have recently assumed a prominent part in Italian politics.)

School Children Learn History By Building Ships



A unique method of instruction in history is employed at the Francis Parker School, in Chicago. Pupils are taught the art of constructing models of ships of various periods in United States history, the interesting work impressing upon them the period in which the vessel was used and the purpose of it. The photograph shows professor H. T. Lukens instructing pupils in making a model of the Mayflower. The other models shown in the picture were made by the pupils, and represent various types of sloops and schooners.

Dust Storm Looked Upon As Evil Omen By Chinese Masses

Similar 'Manifestation Of The Ill Pleasure Of The Gods' Visited Country Previous To The Boxer Outbreak. Also Prior To War With Japan

(BY ELSIE McCORMICK)

What is the new calamity that is about to descend upon China?

From the wise old astrologer of Peking who mumbles over his chart of the stars, to the [illegible] village of the Shantung plains, the masses of Northern Chinese are deeply disturbed by an omen that twice before in the past forty years has heralded disaster for the nation.

The severe dust-storm which swept down from the Gobi Desert last Wednesday and which was followed Friday and Saturday by a heavy rain meant, to the foreigner, in the north, the inconvenience of chewing gritty dust, groping his way through darkened streets, and trying to guard his wardrobe from the intrusion of the fine yellow particles. To the masses of the Chinese people it meant the forecast of a terror to come and the frowning of the gods that never sleep.

The dust-storm which whirled down from the Gobi Desert last week is the first in the memory of foreigners here to be noticeable in Shanghai. For nearly two days the sun gave a diffused, murky light and the city seemed shut in by a peculiar yellow atmosphere. In Peking, however, the dust was so dense that people unwise enough to venture on to the streets could scarcely see their fingers before them and the sky became so dark that it was necessary to use artificial light in the middle of the afternoon. The dust even permeated the inside of trunks and boxes, to say nothing of the interior of houses. Many Chinese state that the storm was accompanied by a strange, dank smell of death that heightened the fear of calamity.

It is not surpising that the dust storm should have become an omen of evil to the Chinese people. The suddenness with which it descends, the uncanny darkness it causes, the queer odors that so often accompany it, and the weird tricks it plays with the light of the sun have all helped to make it an object of fearful superstition. For hundred of years, astronomers at Peking Observatory and astrologers in the temples have puzzled over the signs and portents that were supposed to accompany each dust storm, especially if it were followed by [illegible].

On two occasions in compartively recent years, a heavy dust storm and rain justified its reputation as a harb ringer of trouble. Such a storm preceded the highly disastrous Sino-Japanese War, in which China lost part of her army, most of her navy and all of her face. Formosa was turned over to the enemy, Japan obtained valuable concessions, and China awakened to the sad realisation that she was by no means the power that she had imagined herself.

Another heavy dust and rain storm preceded the Boxer uprising, which imposed a heavy indemnity on the nation and resulted in further loss of face. The storm which swept over Peking last week is said to have been more severe than either of the two that announced these black marks on Chinese history. In neither case was the murkiness perceptible in Shanghai to the extent that it was last Thursday.

Though educated Chinese know that the storm is merely dust blowing down on China from the roof of her untidy neighbor, the lower classes and all who follow the sayings of the soothsayers are extremely uneasy. The calamity may not develop for a year, it may even wait for two, but eventually it is certain to come, for the gods have turned their faces away from the people and allowed the omens of death to invade the capital city.

Just what effect this widespread fear of political disaster will have upon the government of China and whether or not the government will be able to use it for its own ends lies hidden in the future with other secrets of the soothsayers.

Meanwhile the farmer in the field and the workman at his bench wonders uneasily what ills are in store for his nation and what effect they will have upon himself.

Britain May Give Aid To Emigrants

(Reuter's Service)

London, April 18.—Replying to questions in the House of Commons today, Colonel Amery stated that it was proposed to hold a meeting of Empire Prime Ministers in June to discuss the question of a comprehensive policy of land settlement within the Empire and Empire-directed emigration on the basis of co-operation between the Imperial and Dominion Governments. Any such policy would doubtless include provision for assisted passages for approved classes of settlers. Colonel Amery emphasised that the Colonial Office took special care that nobody was encouraged to go to any Dominion where there was unemployment in his trade.

MINE OWNERS MEET TO DEBATE NEW PROPOSAL; MAY FOREGO PROFITS

Visit Secretary Of Mines After Short Conference; Their Action Is Only Indication Of Movement To End The Strike Situation

PREMIER DEFENDS DEFENCE PLANS

Says Presence Of Small Body Of Revolutionists In Ranks Of Strikers Might Easily Precipitate Civil Strife If They Gained Headway

(Reuter's Service)

London, April 19.—The fact that the coal-owners met this morning and proceeded after a short conference to the offices of the Board of Trade to interview the Secretary of Mines, is the only indication of any movement with a view to solution of the drifting situation. It is surmised that the mine-owners will take an early opportunity to respond to the request of the Miners' Federation for an elucidation of Lord Gainford's offer, on behalf of the owners, to forego all profits for the present. The Federation says that before this offer can be treated seriously it must be explicitly stated whether the owners, in suggesting readjustments of the wage schedules, are prepared to agree that the richer districts must assist the poorer ones. It contends that the offer is worthless as it stands at present.

London, April 19.—The Northumberland Miners' Association has instructed its delegates to the national conference on April 22 to ask the Executive Committee to meet the coal-owners and the Government again in order to ascertain what temporary settlement of wages they are prepared to offer, provided the question of establishing a national wages board and a profits pool is discussed later.

London, April 19.—A significant statement was made by the Premier in the House of Commons late last night, which it is thought, may increase the prospects of a settlement in the coal situation. Mr. Lloyd George declared that, although the Government was unable to accept indefinite liability, it did not exclude the possibility of a subsidy for a permanent settlement.

London, April 18.—Coal factors in England are preparing to import American coal, of which large quantities are available for shipment. They declare that despite its fairly high price, the landed cost of American coal is actually less than that of British. Labor and other difficulties are, however, preventing a general acceptance of offers. Moreover, the Government is at present commandering all imported coal.

CHINESE COAL OFFERED

Chinese coal has also been offered but delivery takes at least six weeks. Chinese is regarded not as cheap fuel but its quality is good.

London, April 18.—In moving the supplementary army estimates, necessitated by the defence force and other emergency arrangements, the Secretary for War, Sir Lamping Worthington-Evans, stated that the response to the appeal for recruits for the defence force was most remarkable. Seventy-five thousand trained men had enlisted, and then the recruiting was suspended, but a great many more men had registered. Some of the force were already employed at the request of the civil authorities and were being held in readiness in various districts. The Secretary for War added that the force would be demobilised as soon as precautions were no longer necessary.

London, April 18.—The coal crisis is practically at a standstill at present, owing to the absence of the miners' delegates from London.

The Government's offer to establish a national wages board to give limited temporary financial assistance still holds good. The miners in Durham and Northumberland are said to favor a further conference with the coal-owners in order to ascertain the precise meaning of Lord Gainford's statement last week that the owners were willing temporarily to forego their profits. The majority of the mining areas, however, appear determined to continue the struggle; this feeling is particularly strong in Wales, where the local Miners' Federation is demanding the withdrawal of all labor from the mines and the resignation of the Secretary of the miners' Federation, Mr. Frank Hodges.

WINTRY WEATHER

Wintry weather is accentuating the hardships caused by the strike, the continuance of which for a fortnight, it is stated, will mean the bringing to a standstill of all the big industries on the northeast coast. Even now very few blast furnaces are working, steel works have closed down and the rivers are choked with idle tonnage.

London, April 18.—In the House of Commons today, Mr. J. R. Clynes, the leader of the Labor Party, appealed for the disbandment of the Defence Force, and complained that the measures taken were unprecedented, unnecessary and provocative.

Sir Robert Horne replied that the emergency, too, was unprecedented. The Government had done nothing but take steps to provide the nation with essential food supplies in face of the threat to starve the people. The Defence Force would be withdrawn immediately it was no longer necessary. The cost of the emergency arrangements was £1,000,000 weekly, an expense not relatively great as an assurance against trouble when compared with what the nation was losing as the result of the coal strike.

Mr. Hartshorn, one of the miners' leaders, declared that if the Government accepted the miners' scheme for a national wages board, it would be a long way towards arriving at a settlement. He invited Mr. Lloyd George to summon both sides to meet and discuss publicly all the points.

Mr. Lloyd George, replying, warmly defended the defence steps taken owing to the presence of a small element of revolutionaries who might, without precautionary measures, have gained ascendancy over the bulk of the moderates. The Premier said that the Government might have over-insured against trouble, but it would have been inexcusable to under-insure.

He deprecated another temporary patched-up peace. Although he would not rule out any suggestions, he nevertheless trusted that the settlement, when found, would have elements of permanency. What was really wanted, concluded Mr. Lloyd George, was a scheme offering inducement to all parties engaged in mining to do their best to decrease expenses and increase the output.

FRENCH CABINET DEMANDS ACTION ON REPARATIONS

"Determined To Obtain Firm And Positive Guarantees On May 1"

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, April 16 (delayed).—An important Cabinet meeting was held today, to consider, in M. Briand's own words, "the contingencies of the present moment." President Millerand presided, and there were present the Minister of War (M. Barthou), Marshal Foch and Marshal Petain.

Paris, April 16 (delayed).—Addressing the Parliamentary Committee on Foreign Affairs, the Premier, M. Briand, stated that Germany's dilatory policy had now been carried too far, and France was resolved to secure this time solid and positive guarantees.

Berlin, April 19.—Considerable feeling has been aroused by the semi-official announcement that the Reparations Commission has transmitted a verbal demand to the Reichsbank that the bank's gold reserves must be transferred to the occupied zone before May 1.

London, April 18.—Replying in the House of Commons to questions regarding the proposed participation of Great Britain in the measures for the enforcement of sanctions in the event of Germany's not meeting her requirements by May 1, Mr. Lloyd George stated that Germany was still in default in regard to reparations, the trial of war criminals and disarmament, and that she had hitherto shown no inclination to submit practical proposals to carry out the Peace Treaty in this connection. It was therefore imperative for the Allies to discuss the necessary steps to enforce compliance with their demands.

American Woman's Club Hears Musical Program

The Music Department of the American Woman's Club presented one of the most interesting programs of the year before a well-attended meeting held yesterday afternoon in the Carlton Cafe. "American Composers" was the general subject of the meeting, and selections from their works were given by local artists. Though the program was shortened by the unavoidable absence of Mrs. Frederick Tillson and Miss Myra B. Olive, it nevertheless covered the subject in a highly successful manner.

The program opened with the playing of a movement from E. MacDowell's "Keltic Sonata" by Mrs. Chapman, following which Mrs. L. E. McLachlin sang four plaintive, wistful melodies by E. L. Ashford. Other numbers which were greatly enjoyed included several violin solos played by Mrs. M. P. Walker, two vocal selections by E. Nevin, "'Twas April" and "Beat Upon My Little Heart," sung by Mrs. McLachlin, and three solos, "At Dawning," "Perfect Nights and Days," and "I Drink to the Fragrance of a Rose," sung by Mr. W. B. Lunt. Mrs. M. P. Walker and Miss M. S. Mitchell arranged the program.

At the business meeting preceding the musical numbers Mesdames M. T. Stauffer, Harry S. Janes, W. A. Main, F. P. Bills and F. J. Van Wickel were elected to serve on the Membership Committee. Mrs. W. W. Bartlett was chosen a member of the Publicity Committee for a one-year term, Mrs. A. M. Massie for a two-year term, and Miss Margaret Powell to serve for three years.

On the motion of Mrs. C. F. Remer, the club voted to pledge $250 a year to the Shanghai Moral Welfare Committee, in addition to $250 for which the Social Service Department assumed responsibility at a recent meeting. The organisation also passed an amendment raising the annual dues from three dollars to five dollars.

MRS. OWENS SPEAKS

Before the beginning of the musical program, Mrs. Charles Owens, wife of the commander of the U. S. S. New Orleans, described in a brief talk her experiences as a war worker in France, having been associated first with a Franco-American organisation caring for refugee children and later with the American Red Cross. Mrs. Owens helped in the supervision of 40 children's camps, half the population of which were tubercular.

"One of the greatest problems confronting France today," Mrs. Owens said, "was that of trying to save thousands of children from institutional life."

When America entered the war, Mrs. Owens became a searcher in a Red Cross Hospital, interviewing soldiers returned from the front in order to find traces of missing men. She also had the heavy duty of writing "mortality letters" to relatives of soldiers who died in the hospital.

Mrs. J. C. Ferguson of Peking, who, with Mrs. E. S. Cunningham, was a guest of honor at the tea preceding the meeting, spoke briefly of the day when the club consisted of only 20 members and was known as the American Woman's Literary Society. Mrs. Ferguson a former president of the club congratulated the organisation on its rapid growth in recent years and the wide scope of its interests.

The next meeting of the club, scheduled for May third, will be conducted by the Mothers' Department.

The regular monthly meeting of the Mothers' department of the American Woman's club will be held this morning at the Carlton, at 10:30 o'clock. Mrs. L. J. Birney will read a paper on "The need of the development of a moral and religious life, and Mrs. Dr. MacMartin will review Hodge's book on "The training of children in religion." An interesting and profitable meeting is anticipated. All members of the club and their friends are invited to be present.

Mixed Court Jottings

The chauffeur of a motor lorry which ran down and killed a man on the Broadway April 4 was sentenced to three months' imprisonment by the Mixed Court yesterday. Another chauffeur who knocked down a small child on East Yuhang Road on February 24 was sentenced to two months' imprisonment, dating from the time of arrest, and to pay the child's hospital expenses, or, in lieu of that, spend an additional two weeks in jail.

The Chinese who was charged with having tried to bribe the Chinese night constables of Hongkew police station on behalf of opium dealers in that district was released yesterday after being cautioned and required to sign a bond for his good behaviour during the next year. Assessor Jacobs and Magistrate Li held that there was not sufficient evidence to convict. The testimony of the police was that the defendant had called a C.P.C. to his shop and given him $280, purporting to have come from 11 shopkeepers engaged in selling opium. The C.P.C. turned the money over to his superiors and reported the matter. The money was ordered confiscated by the Court. Mr. R. C. Faithful prosecuted the case and Mr. F. J. Schuhl defended.

The proprietor of an opium den at 54 Annam Road was sent to jail for a month yesterday, four patrons of the place being fined $3 each. In another opium case three shopmen appeared on the charge of selling the drug, police witnesses testifying that they had made purchases. The case was remanded one week.

Misappropriation of 400 shares of the Chinese Merchants Stock Exchange valued at $42,000 was charged against a Chinese who appeared yesterday on complaint of the Oriental Lens Grinding Company. Mr. J. O. Fischer, appearing for the complainants, asked that the case be remanded for the Italian Assessor as the company was registered at the Italian Consulate. Mr. F. W. Hadley opposed the motion on the ground that the Consulate had made no request, but it was stated that the case was connected with another action being heard by the Italian Assessor and the remand was granted.

Tang Shao-yi Halts Sun's Inauguration

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Hongkong, April 19.—The Canton correspondent of the Morning Post learns that Tang Shao-yi is strongly opposed to the election of Dr. Sun Yat-sen as President and that his opposition is causing the postponement of the inauguration of Dr. Sun.

Peking, April 19.—According to a message from Tientsin, the Northern leaders in conference there have invited Wang Chang-yuan, Tuchun of Hupeh, to come to Tientsin. In the meanwhile representatives of the various Central provinces are meeting at Wuchang with a view to discussing their future attitude towards Canton.

Dr. Sun Yat-sen will not assume his duties as the President of the Southern Republic today as originally planned. He has officially announced that the inauguration will take place on May 1. But it is doubtful whether he will ever be able to do so.

Opposition against his election has been bitter. Hunan and Kweichow have openly circulated telegrams denouncing the action. Other South-western provinces are ignoring the event. Tang Shao-yi left for his home in Hoensan as soon as the results were announced. General Tang Chi-yao left for Hongkong before the election without bidding farewell to any of the then administrative councillors. Chu Fu-chen, vice-speaker of the House, is on his way to Shanghai, while the speaker, Wu Chin-lien, had remained in Shanghai throughout the Southern turmoil.

Storm Widespread In Southern U.S.

(U. S. Navy Radio through Reuter)

Memphis, Tenn., April 18.—The recent storm evidently first struck Northern Texas and then passed into Arkansas, where the number of persons dead is reported to have reached 50. It then moved in an easterly direction. Six persons were crushed to death by the destruction of their homes at Ayanger, in Texas; six were killed in Eastern Miss'sippi, and ten in Northern Alabama.

Torrential rain accompanied the story in some places, and at Jackson, Mississippi, the downfall was 6.5 inches in less than 24 hours. The train service has been suspended in places. A Southern railway train toppled over in a ditch as the result of a washaway at Laurel, Mississippi, and a number of passengers were killed.

Banvard's

Arthur Rigby's musical comedy, "Harem Belles," with additional scenes by Leonard Neville, was repeated at the Olympic Theater last night by the Banvard Company.

The piece met with as much favor as its first showing by the same company a week ago. The song and dance features were the same as the first program.

"Cosy Cottage" by Viola Williams and Douglas MacLaren, and "My Cairo Maid" by Ian MacLean and the "Moth and Flames" dance by Adrian D. Ross and Winnie Goodwin were the hits.

Tonight the Banvard Company will give a benefit to Mr. Harry Neville, formerly of the Dennis-ton Company. The program will be in two parts comprising 14 special feature numbers of music, song, humor and dance. The whole Banvard Company, reinforced by several local amateurs will participate.

Miss May de Souza will render song hits from the "Belle of New York," played by the Shanghai A.D.C. some few months ago, and also other numbers.

Miss Helene Duvál, who formerly appeared in prominent productions with Mr. Neville, will give song numbers from Flora Bella, and others.

The Silas Brothers, well known to Shanghai audiences will give their musical sketch "Mirth, Music and Mimicry."

Miss Winnie Goodwin and Adrian R. Ross, the dancing artists of the Banvard Company, in response to many special requests will repeat their "Pierot and Pierette" dance.

Shaohing Students Enjoy Dealey Lecture

Shaohing, Chekiang, April 10.—April 2 and 3 were days of much profit to many of the students and teachers of our city, those who were fortunate enough to hear the lectures given by Prof. J. Q. Dealey, Brown University exchange professor at Shanghai College. Although very few addresses of a modern type have been given in Shaohing on the subjects of political and social science, more than three hundred Chinese braved the inclement weather and listened to Dr. Dealey's address on Saturday evening on "National Reconstruction—Some Fundamentals."

Following the lecture there was an interesting hour of questioning by the students, when Dr. Dealey proved himself to be a master teacher by his careful, stimulating answers to the rapid fire of inquiries concerning Bolshevism, militarism, co-education and other important topics.

Neither in this address nor that on "Why China is Young," which was given to another large audience on Sunday, did Dr. Dealey sound that shallow, optimistic note that has characterised some lectures on China by foreign observers; there was a real recognition of the tremendous size of the outstanding problems of China plus the well-grounded hope for the ultimate regeneration of the nation that follows from thoroughgoing study of the modern period in Western history.

Board Named For Tsinghua College

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, April 15.—The Chinese Minister for Foreign Affairs, the Vice-Minister for Foreign Affairs and the American Minister to China have been appointed by the Chinese Government as a permanent board to control the endowment fund of Tsinghua College, so that both the College and the Chinese Educational Mission in the United States may be continued in perpetuity.

The expenses of Tsinghau College and of the Chinese Educational Mission in America have, in accordance with the notes exchanged between the Chinese and American Governments in 1908, been met from the proceeds of America's share of the Boxer Indemnity Fund, which was remitted to China on the above terms in 1908. What is left over from the annual Boxer Indemnity instalments formerly due the United States after the requirements of Tsinghua and the Chinese Educational Mission have been satisfied is being placed to the credit of a permanent endowment fund; and it is anticipated that his fund will be big enough by 1940, when the Boxer Indemnity payments cease, to provide forever for the needs of both Tsinghau and China's endowed students in the United States.

Nanking College Club Entertains

(China Press Correspondence)

On Saturday evening, April 16, there was a tea party served by the Cotton Club of the University of Nanking to some of the faculty members and their wives, representatives of the other societies and clubs of the university and the members (both old and new) of the club.

It was in the chemistry lecture room, B7 of the Sewsay Hall of the university. There were two representatives from each of the following societies and clubs of the university: Agricultural and Forestry Society, Civics Club, Science Club, Social Science Club and World Events Club.

The meeting was started by a short address of the president of the club, Mr. Shao Teh-haing. Next to the program, one of the members of the club, Mr. Chen Kwei-chi, gave an address on the subject, "The Purpose and Nature of the Cotton Club," in which he made clear to the audiences the importance of cotton industry in China at present, the reasons why the cotton club was established, when and where the club is established, the foregoing events of the club, etc., etc.

Then the dean of the department of Agriculture and Forestry of the University, Mr. J. L. Buck, made an address on the subject, "Possible activities of the club." During his address he showed the audiences the agricultural atlas of the United States on the volume of cotton. Many other suggestions have been made to the club outside of the above mentioned.

Prof. J. B. Griffing, the cotton expert in charge of the cotton improvement work of the university, is the adviser of the club. He was absent to the meeting on account of illness.

Finally one representative from each society and club gave a short speech in succession. Each brought out some valuable points.

New T.K.K. Steamer Cape Finisterre Due Here May 14

The allocation to Japan of the ex-German steamer Cape Finisterre, which is due at Shanghai on or about May 14 gives the Toyo Kisen Kaisha the largest ship that has run in Japanese Service.

The new steamer is built on generous lines. It measures 580 feet in length, 65 feet beam and 35 feet depth. It attains a sea speed of 18 knots an hour.

First class passenger accommodations on the Cape Finisterre are provided for 418 people, which with 108 second, 120 third and 328 steerage give a total of 1,468.

The steamer has eight decks, five of which serve first class quarters. Public rooms include a social hall, ladies saloon, dining rooms, smoking room, children's playroom, and a winter garden with a fountain.

Other distinctive features include an elevator, a porcelain swimming tank, a telephone exchange, and an anti-rolling tank. All cooking is electrically done.

The Cape Finisterre displaces the Korea Maru in the Hongkong-San Francisco run, the latter boat being withdrawn for repair work.

Bookings for the Cape Finisterre already have been heavy, so that advance reservations are advised for those contemplating taking passage.

Union Club Holds Meeting And Elects Officers For 1921

The election of new committee, directory and officers occupied the members of the Union Club and its proprietory company at their annual meetings held last night at the club at No. 1 Hankow road.

The club's meeting was presided over by the President, Mr. J. Harold Dollar, supported by Messrs. A. W. Burkill, W. A. B. Nichols, Chu Pao-san, Lo Jack-sung and E. Y. Sheng. The proprietory company's meeting which followed immediately was presided over by Mr. A. W. Burkill.

The reports and accounts for the club was adopted on proposal by Mr. Dollar, seconded by Mr. Burkill, and the selection of committee members was taken up. The following were selected:

American.—Messrs. W. A. B. Nichols, A. R. Hager and B. C. Haffa.

British.—Messrs. H. W. Lester, D. Galloway and M. H. Logan.

Chinese.—Messrs. Chu Pao-san, Fu Siao-en, and Lo Jack-sung.

From these Messrs. Logan, Nichols and Chu Pao-san were selected to agree among themselves as to which of the offices they each would accept. The vacancies include the presidency and vice-presidency.

At the proprietory company meeting the reports and accounts were adopted; Messrs. E. F. Mackay and T. C. Drakeford were elected as directors and Messrs. Lowe, Bingham and Matthews were re-elected as auditors.

INSTALLING ELEVATOR

Mr. Burkill, in his speech, went over the accounts of the company, which was formed for the sole purpose of financing the club. The loss shown for the past year, he said, could be expected to develop in time into a yearly profit. The enforced change of quarters recently forced upon the club, he said, had entailed a great expense. It was necessary to pay double rentals for five months while the new quarters were being prepared.

THE PRESIDENT'S SPEECH

Mr. Dollar, in his speech, said:

"Gentlemen.—Referring first to the working account, it is to be regretted that we again have to report a loss, which is due largely to the unsettled conditions as the result of moving from our old club rooms to the present quarters, but now that we are permanently located in these spacious premises it is to be hoped that members will attend the club regularly and thus lend their best support.

"Unfortunately in making the change it was necessary to pay double rent for five months, which cost us $3,472.22 which can only be considered as an extraordinary expense, and by deducting this sum from the loss of $7,961.94 it leaves us a loss on our operations of $4,489.72, which as compared with our last annual report is quite satisfactory. I am glad to say that with our present income and expenditures we are just running even; therefore, with an additional membership we feel confident of making a more satisfactory showing in our next annual report.

"As pointed out by my predecessor in his annual report, the loss on the bar is due to the fact that a very large proportion of the members are practically total abstainers and as the same condition still prevails we cannot, therefore, hope to derive the same income and profits from this source that most of the other clubs in Shanghai enjoy.

"The dining room account still shows a loss but I think you will agree with me that the food and service have been greatly improved since we have settled down in our new quarters, and after the lift has been installed it is hoped that a greater number of members will use the dining room at tiffin time. The service is very difficult to maintain under present conditions, when the steward never knows whether there are going to be four people for tiffin or fifty.

"In view of the above the club has not seen fit to take its percentage of the dining room receipts, but has in fact been obliged to increase the steward's allowance for service in order that the members who do patronise the dining room may be well satisfied.

THE PRESIDENT'S SPEECH

"The lift machinery has now arrived and the work of installing it has begun, and we hope to have it in running condition within two months, at which time I am sure the attendance at the club will be considerably increased.

"Referring to the question of membership, this now stands at 100 Chinese, 99 British and 46 Americans, 245 in all, which represents an increase during the year of 22 members.

"The object for which the club was formed has been proved by the many committees of different associations making it their eating place, and the great number of large dinner parties and social functions testify to the club's popularity as an institution furthering the spirit of co-operation between the nationalities of which it is composed. Another feature which has increased the social side of the club's affairs has been the additional number of ladies' days, which have been taken advantage of by many members."

Does He Know Death?

DEAD by all tests, Charles McMahon was brought back to life in the Herotin Memorial Hospital in Chicago the other day. McMahon had been operated on for double hernia and while under the influence of the anesthetic sank to the dividing line between life and death. His heart stopped beating, the lungs ceased to function, the flesh grew cold. A mirror was placed to his mouth—the old test of life—and no moisture gathered. The physicians then resorted to pumping oxygen into the man's lungs and after many minutes of labor the life-giving oxygen took effect. He is now recovering and expects to be out of the hospital in a few weeks. Asked if he was conscious of the fact or supposition that he was dead or dying, Mr. McMahon said: "Well, I felt I was gone." He said he did not experience the consciousness of any knowledge that he was in a land of the hereafter.

Chefoo Visited By Sandstorm

(China Press Correspondence)

Chefoo, April 16.—Chefoo has had quite a variety of weather lately, and on Thursday it had the almost unique experience of having a dust storm. From the early hours of the morning till late in the evening it blew hard. The air was filled with clouds of dust and everything was smothered in a brown mantle. The Bluff was quite obscured and work afloat had to be abandoned.

Mr. Cornwell from Peking is here trying to obtain a piece of ground at the East Beach as a place on which to erect a large tent for the sailors to go to when ashore. The American fleet is expected to reach here during the next months, and so steps are being taken to see that suitable arrangements are made for their amusement.

China To Take Part In Postal Parleys

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, April 12.—According to a cable from Lisbon, the request of China to participate in the League of International Post and Telegraph has been granted, pursuant to which the quota of the Chinese Government's expense has already been forwarded.

"PRICELESS"

is a popular way of describing anything which has proved to be of exceptional value, and may therefore be employed to describe that old and favourite preparation—Beecham's Pills. The ever-increasing army of men and women who have experience of this excellent medicine generally use some such phrase as "priceless" or "Worth a guinea a box" when speaking of Beecham's Pills. This is certainly high praise. But it is well-merited. Beecham's Pills have proved, times out of number, to be a "priceless" preparation in the treatment of digestive ailments. They bring relief; they safeguard the health; they effect remarkable cures. All who suffer in any way from biliousness, sick headache, constipation, impaired appetite, and the resulting loss of energy and want of tone should take

BEECHAM'S PILLS

Shaohing Eager For New Railway

(China Press Correspondence)

Shaohing, Chekiang, April 10.—The forward-looking Chinese and foreigners here are longing for the day when work will be begun again in dead earnest on the projected Ningpo-Hangchow Railway. The absence of modern industrial establishments is keenly felt, too, by those who regard the making of idol-money and the manufacture of rice-wine as anything but basic industries for a city boasting of a population somewhere between the three and four hundred thousand mark.

A typical case of opposition to modern improvements occurred recently when rickshaws appeared on our streets again and were frowned upon by large elements of the population, including some self-styled champions of democracy. Several years ago a criminal rode to his execution in a rickshaw, and that settled the fate of the two-wheeled, rubber-tired vehicles for some time. Pressure was brought to bear on the powers that be, and small wooden approaches to the bridges were constructed when this unpopular mode of transportation was recently resurrected. One morning, however, the people of Shaohing woke up to find the approaches all missing and the bridges as unsuitable for rickshaw travel as of old. We wonder what will happen when iron horses from the West are heard snorting outside of our venerable city walls.

Chita Government To Have 'Directorate'

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Vladivostok, April 19.—Peasant risings against the Bolsheviks continue to occur in Western Siberia and the Transbaikal.

The Bolsheviks state that, owing to the lack of troops and the bad state of the roads, they are unable to liquidate the movement at Yaloutorovsk, Ishim, Tiukalnsk, Tara, Tobolsk, Tiumen and Shadrinsk.

In the Novo Nikolaievsk district, around Ordinsk and Medevsk, the rebels have defeated the Reds. Part of the latter forces are joining up with the rebels.

Chita, April 18.—The question of the formation of a Coalition Government has not been decided, chiefly owing to differences with the Mensheviks. It is expected that the President will shortly be replaced by a directorate.

Vladivostok, April 18.—The second session of the tenth conference of Ussuri Cossacks has been opened at Crodekovo, thus ignoring the conference recently held at Iman.

Chita, April 18.—The railway in Transbaikalia is being strongly guarded, owing to fears of attacks by peasant rebels, skirmishes with whom have already occurred.

Habarovsk, April 18.—Despite the democratic declarations of the Chita authorities regarding freedom of speech and of the press, the postal and telegraph censorship still continues. Permits are necessary for travelling, and goods and money which have been requisitioned have not been returned.

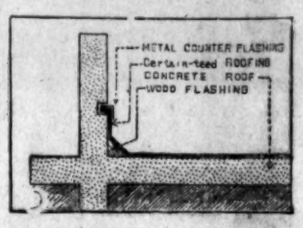
ROOFING SUGGESTIONS

For Building Owners (No. 4)

Do not expose a concrete roof to the weather— It Absorbs Water Too Easily.



Concrete roofs are usually found on large buildings such as factories, godowns etc.

Concrete is naturally porous and the presence of water permits a surprising amount to seep through. Accordingly, a covering of Certain-teed Roofing is placed over the concrete to effectually seal the pores and exclude the moisture.

It is interesting to note the ingenious method employed to weatherproof the junction between the roof and walls.

By placing a small wooden block, termed "flashing" in the angle, the Certain-teed is carried upward along the perpendicular wall and inserted in a crevice in the wall itself. This crevice is then sealed up with concrete. In the same crevice and likewise sealed is placed a strip of sheet metal termed "counter-flashing" which is bent downwards over the Certain-teed. This serves to exclude the rainfall from entering the junction of the concrete wall and the Certain-teed roofing and provides a water tight union.

BELGIAN PRINCESS WRITES HER DIARY OF CRUSHED LOVE

Delusions Shattered When She Wed Philip Of Coburg At Age Of 15

BARES COURT INTRIGUES

Ordered To Prison In Vienna As Lunatic When She Fled From Hated Husband

London, Feb. 26.—Princess Louise of Belgium in her book "My Own Affairs," just published, which gives a tragic picture of Vienna court life, says: "Our troubles, our worries, our own individualities are as naught in the whirlpool of human passion. I felt myself carried away, with everything which surrounded me, into the unknown country of new era."

Every page of the book reflects the disaster which smashed down the hopes, the intrigues and the ambitions of royalty. Princess Louise is the eldest daughter of the late King Leopold of Belgium. When she was fifteen years old she was married to Prince Philip of Saxe-Coburg, but this proved a cruel disillusionment and was followed by years of suffering and rebellion on her part. She ultimately fled from the husband whom she hated; a Viennese court ordered her imprisoned as a lunatic and the man with whom she fled was imprisoned as a forger, although both charges later were proved to have been trumped up. During the war she was almost destitute.

Concerning her marriage the Princess says: "I was healthy in mind and body, pure in spirit, and gave my whole soul with my marriage without troubling myself what marriage might mean. The man who was to be my companion on the enchanted road of life seemed the embodiment of all that was beautiful and loyal and generous, and I deemed him as innocent as myself. I am not the first woman who, after having lived in the clouds during the engagement period, has been suddenly hurled to the ground on her marriage night; whose bruised and mangled soul has fled from humanity in tears. While all Brussels was dancing amid a blaze of light and illumination I fell from the heaven of love.

"The day was scarcely breaking when I fled from the Palace across the park. With bare feet thrust into slippers and a cloak wrapped over my night dress I went to hide my shame in an oratory, where I found sanctuary and whispered my grief, my despair, my torture amidst the purity there."

Of the early weeks of their married life she writes: Every evening my husband took care that he was served abundantly with good wines. He was trained for this practice something akin to gluttony of the soul, and of necessity I followed his example. Unhealthy books, suggestive jokes, daily miseries made up my life. When I think of these things now I am at a loss to know how I endured them. It was worse than being locked up in a madhouse. A palace can become a hell. Titles count for nothing. A bad household is a bad household."

She calls the old Emperor Francis Joseph a narrow minded man full of preconceived ideas. "The Emperor's brother was the instigator of a hatred of which I was the victim," she writes. "For many years he laid his devotion at my feet. All Vienna knew it, the Emperor included, because scandal was his daily bread and to him it was almost an affair of State to know whether the Archduke Louis Victor would succeed in vanquishing the citadel of my virtue."

Of Ferdinand, former King of Bulgaria, her husband's youngest brother, she gives a weird description, telling of his spiritualistic seances and calling him a kind of demoniacal personality.

She tells how, as a child, she ate a peach out of the royal garden, for which her own father, King Leopold, punished her thereby proving that he counted the peaches. "I cannot," she writes, "recall a single act of kindness or tenderness on his part toward my mother."

The Department of Communications of Japan is celebrating the 50th anniversary of the postal service today, and has issued on the occasion new sets of stamps and cards. The stamps depict the present G.P.O. building and three flags, postal flags, old and new, with the national flag between them. On the post cards the old post office building is shown in the middle with receptacle and carrier of old times and the facsimile of old stamps and cards. Each member of the staff who has over 25 years' service is to be presented with a silver cup. The card bearing the facsimile of the stamps cannot unfortunately be posted for Great Britain, Canada and United States where they are not allowed to be imported. A very few are offered for sale at the Japanese post office here today.

Kidnapped Girl Finds Parents After Ten Years

Ten years ago a twelve-year-old girl was kidnapped from her home on a small farm in Anhwei and shortly thereafter was brought to Shanghai where she was sold to a wealthy family living on the North Szechuen Road Extension.

Recently her mistress betrothed the girl to a young man here. As preparations began to be made for the wedding the foster daughter's thoughts turned more and more to her real parents and she wrote a letter which she directed to the district in Anhwei which was, so far as her memory served to tell her, that including her native place. The missive attained its goal and the father, who had long given up all hope of ever seeing his daughter again, hastily summoned the father of the lad to whom the girl had been betrothed in infancy and both hurried to Shanghai.

They faced a dilemma here when the daughter refused to return to her old home or to give up her second betrothed. To straighten the matter out they brought it into Court and yesterday the girl, who had evidently reconsidered her stand, stated that she was quite willing to return to her parents and was given into the father's charge under that consideration.

Germany is no appreciable loss to Shanghai's orchestra. We will not need their talent."

At Paris Paci expects to purchase instruments and will purchase the best newly published music to bring the Shanghai library of music up to date.

Asked as to his plans for the future of the Shanghai orchestra Prof. Paci said that immediately upon his return about September 15, he will get to work on the reorganisation of the personnel, and for the rehearsals for the 1921 fall season. He hopes to develop an orchestra that will be permanent.

"I have big plans for my orchestra," Mr. Paci said. "The Shanghai public appreciates good music and I am going to give it to them. This coming season I expect to continue the Sunday concerts with many improvements in the quality of the music and in the scope of its selection. Later I expect to institute popular weekly five o'clock tea concerts, where people of Shanghai may drop in after business, for a good cup of tea, and good hour of the best music."

During Paci's absence the regular concerts Sunday will be under the direction of his assistant, Mr. de Kryger.

The Bandman Co.

The Bandman Company introduced a new show to Shanghai on their second night's appearance here and drew every indication of approval from another large audience.

"Oh Joy" is rather a flimsy structure, even for musical farce, but it has some bright lines and more pleasing music and—the main thing—it is well handled by an efficient band of artists. Its basis is the stock musical farce combination of the young engaged couple and the intrusive and compromising young actress, which ingredients have been compounded by Messrs. Bolton and Wodehouse after a fashion which furnishes a succession of amusing situations.

Miss Dollie Prince was the bright and shining item in the evening's entertainment, with Mr. Jack Crichton and Jerry Verno shouldering most of the masculine honors. Miss Prince danced and sang delightfully and her duet with Mr. Verno in the second act held up the show until both artists begged to be spared further encores.

Mr. Dan Mansfield was back on duty last night, having caught the company after a missed steamship connection and handled the role of an aggrieved police constable in effective style.

The show is well dressed and well set and will undoubtedly draw a good house on its repeat performance tonight. Tomorrow night the company is to give the succesaful London revue "Buzz Buzz."

SAYS "BUGS" Baer:

TERROR HAUTE WAS A PIPPIN

Could Grow A New Toupee Every Night, Like A Bayside Lawn

BY 'BUGS' BAER

Sports, American:

Dear Sirs: There is a romance connected with the meteoric career of Gink Fowler of Roughtown that stirs the heart like a first trip on the English channel. Sometimes, I think there must have been a Gink Fowler...At other times, I am not so sure. I think there was a parallel case in my home town, Terror Haute, Indiana. The town was named after Terror Haute, the Indian fighter, who roamed the western plain at a time when no man could call his life insurance his own. Terror was a renowned Indian battler. He was scalped three times a week for years, but his hair grew out overnight. No Indian would kill him because he made Geronimo, Sitting Bull and Rain-in-the-Face famous.

You know that an Indian's rep was judged by the number of scalps he took. Terror used to hire himself out as a scalp form. For a pint of delirium oil, he would allow Geronimo to scalp him three times each week. He also had the facility of changing the color of his hair, so that the other Indians would think Geronimo was scalping the entire Republican population of Ohio. Terror died from having his nails manicured too closely by a girl in the Ritz-Carlton barber shop. He couldn't stand the rough ways of the East.

Yours sincerely,

JOE SMOLLEN,

Address, The Lincoln Highway, on nice days.

Gink 'Fowler didn't have Terror's ability to grow wool overnight. But he did have a similar liability that he soon turned into an asset. Through some whim of the recent administration, Gink had been cursed with the power of changing color like a chameleon on a rainbow. He was actually red when he got angry, green when jealous, blue on a New England Sunday and invisible when scared. He won all his fights riding under the last named colors.

He once fought a two-handed brawler named Sheepshead McKay. Sheepshead was a rough-and-tumble fighter. If you'd rough him, he would tumble. But like a pack of lions in a corner, he would fight if he couldn't find a keyhole to loop through. The fight took place at Roughtown, which was a neutral spot for both fighters. Gink was born there, lived there all his life, but he was still a stranger to the decent citizens of the town. Sheepshead didn't know anybody either.

They went at it sledge and scissors for two rounds, with Gink changing colors like the block system on the Erie. First he would be radiantly pink with victory, then he would switch to a Scotch plaid of faith, hope and charity.

In the eleventh round Sheepshead caught him with a right swing that had plenty of postage on it. The blow carried Gink two stations past his corner and out into the nickel seats. He turned invisible because he was scared. Nobody rubbed him down between rounds because his seconds didn't know he was on the chair. The referee couldn't count him dead because he couldn't find the evidence.

Gink stayed two more rounds punishing Sheepshead with Weejee Board lefts and ghostly rights. He regained confidence and started to assume a pink color. After that his seconds used to fill the water bucket with analine dyes. Gink would step out looking like an Easter Egg. He mixed up with a bird named Battling Nogg and the Egg-Nogg fight will be remembered until Europe pays our war debts.

ATHLETICS HAVE GOOD PROSPECTS IN LEAGUE RACE

Connie Mack Once More Has Likely Looking Bunch

BY BILLY EVANS

Building up a major league baseball team is a task. If you have your doubts, I refer you to Connie Mack who knows as much baseball as any man that ever lived.

Years ago when Mack was winning pennants he had a team that was practically invincible. For various reasons, Mack decided the team should be broken up. There are those who believe Connie erred, but Mack had the courage of his convictions and carried out his belief.

REAL BUILDERS

Mack is one of the few developers of players among the major league managers. By that I mean, Mack picks up players as youngsters, and makes them into stars. Most managers get their winning combinations by picking off the stars of minor leagues at fancy prices.

Most of the members of his famous teams of bygone days were the product of the school of Mack. Eddie Collins came from Columbia, Jack Barry from Holy Cross, Jack McInnis from Gloucester High School, Jack Coombs from Colby, Eddie Plank from Gettysburg, Eddie Murphy from Villa Nova and so on.

When Mack broke up this machine, he hoped to get together another winning combination in the same way. After having ripped his team to pieces, he started to reconstruct it with youngsters fresh from the colleges or the minors, most of them unknown to fame.

During the past five or six years Mack has tried out several hundred youngsters. Some came to him with great promise. Of the 50 or more collegians he has tried out, many had as big a college reputation as Collins, Barry and others of his famous machine. Most of them failed to deliver, and Mack has found the task of reconstructing a big league team perhaps more difficult than he at first figured. Just prior to the entry of United States into war, it looked as if Mack was getting somewhere. A number of his men were called into the service, his line-up badly shattered, and he practically had to start all over again.

PERKINS A STAR

It seems to me as if Mack is once more on the way. He has developed a pretty fair pitching staff that will more than hold its own, provided it gets proper fielding and the ordinary amount of hitting. Back of the hat

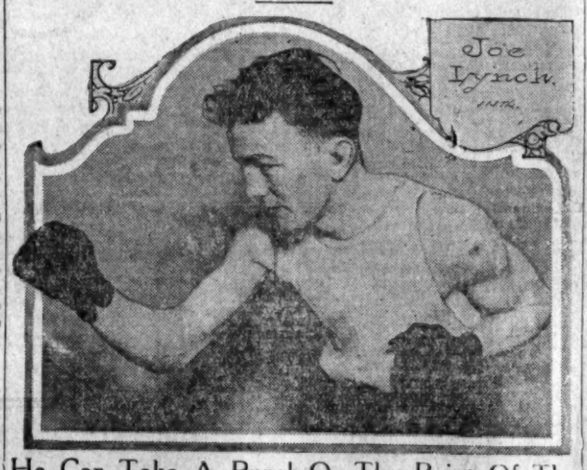
Joe Lynch, Boss Bantam, Is Real Fighter And Should Keep Title Quite A While



He Can Take A Punch On The Point Of The Chin And Keep Right On Wading In Until He Gets His Opponent

BY BOB EDGREN

Joe Lynch, world's bantamweight champion, is a regular fighting man and the only present titleholder who is a war veteran and who saw active service on European battlefields. Joe was in the 52d Pioneer Infantry, Colonel Foster's regiment, with Bill Wellman and many other noted sportsmen. The 52d was a fighting regiment, in the U.S. and abroad, and Lynch had a busy time with the gloves as well as with the Huns.

Like nearly all of the real champions, Lynch fought his way up to the title by degrees. There was no royal road to a championship and a fortune for him. When he whipped Peter Herman, the clever little fellow from New Orleans, he had already shown championship form in many hard ring battles, and the result of his fight for the title was no surprise to those who had followed his career.

Joe is well built for boxing. He is fairly tall for a bantamweight, has broad, square shoulders and is so symmetrically formed that there is no freakish point in his physical makeup. He has a good reach, is lean, sinewy and strong, has plenty of speed, is naturally aggressive, yet a cool ring general, and has a good knowledge of effective hitting. Being knocked down only makes him fight harder, and he does his best when up against a hard opponent.

Joe's home is in West Forty-second street, New York, and it was in this fighting neighborhood that he got his first experience and knowledge of scrapping. His father was—and still is—an expressman. When Joe isn't too busy in the ring he works on his father's wagons, for he is a believer in the old notion that hard work is the best training. It was this hard work that gave him the extraordinary endurance seen in many of his ring fights.

GOT $125 FOR FIRST FIGHT.

Like Benny Leonard, Joe got his start at Billy Gibson's old Fairmont A. C. in the Bronx. In his first appearance there he put on the boxing gloves for the first time, as all his experience before that had been confined to boyish bare-fist boxing on the streets and in vacant lots. He made a good showing, and as he won several bouts he was soon "in the money."

When he got $125 for beating Billy Fitzsimmons it looked like a fortune to him. In the past six months Joe has earned more than $40,000 in the ring. He got $16,000 for his two fights with Jack Sharkey, $11,000 for boxing Abe Goldstein and Jabez White, and $7,500 for beating Pete Herman. These have been his big money battles. As champion he will probably follow the pace of Light-weight Champion Benny Leonard, whose ring earnings

SHANGHAI NINE PLAYS SAILORS HERE SUNDAY

Five-Inning Game Is Plan To Get Line On Those Out For Club

PITCHERS ARE NEEDED

Maloney Will Probably Hurl Sunday With All Candidates In Lineup

Baseball followers will be allowed a peek at the material available for the Shanghai team of 1921 at the Race Course on Sunday afternoon when a five-inning game will be played against a nine from the U.S.S. New Orleans. The New Orleans is due here on Thursday and the men will be in shape as they have been playing ball in Manila.

The game will not go over five innings and if the temperature doesn't leap a couple of figures before Sunday, Captain Crow may cut down the program to three sessions.

The locals could stand five innings with Maloney pitching if Hoag or Griffith work well behind the bat. Mal's arm is in good shape and he can burn them over now as fast as he will be able to in mid summer.

There is a dearth of box material that is almost saddening. Merrill, Terry and Maloney are the only three in sight unless Longfellow can get into shape and Gallop can drop off a ton or two. The former Boston Latin star is miles over weight. Little is known of Devine and all the boys are pulling for him to come through as a sort of find.

It will be hard to select a nine for Sunday but everybody will get a chance to show at some time or another in the opening game. Crow will probably start Hopkins on first, Smith on second, Bills at short and himself at third. The outfield will probably be Stovall, Wolff and Smith, the veteran, when the curtain rises.

Whether or not Bills will be able to play Sunday has not yet been learned but the star of many seasons has been absent from practice sessions because of illness in his family. It is hoped that he will be on hand today or tomorrow and the squad and the have run up to nearly a quarter of a million dollars.

Lynch is the kind of a fighter who is likely to retain the title for some time, not by avoiding rivals, but by beating them one after another. He never has been an easy mark, and with a champion's prestige and confidence added to his natural ability he's going to be a hard lad to down. He likes that diamond-studded belt Tex Rickard presented him with when he won the championship, and says he'll defend it at any time against any contender who can make the weight.

Joe has four brothers. None of the others have shown championship aspirations yet, but there's no telling when the Lynch family will begin to crowd the ring. Paddy Lynch, his father, doesn't object to boxing now that Joe has made such a success of it. You'll note that Joe comes by the "Lynch" honestly. He didn't have to adopt a good Irish fighting name. He had it already.

Lynch Did Not Start

Unlike most champions, Joe Lynch didn't start as a knocker-out. Most of his early fights were no-decision affairs and went the scheduled distance. He fought a lot of good ones, too. Among the lot he met in 1917, when he was little more than a novice, were Jack Sharkey, Kid Williams, Frankie Burns, Pete Herman, Willie Astey, Frankie Daley, Joe Leonard, Eddie O'Keefe and Pal Moore.

In 1918 Lynch lost to Pal Moore, whom he had beaten the year before, in twelve rounds. Even a coming champion has an upset now and then. But less than three weeks afterward he fought the great Kid Williams in Philadelphia and knocked the Kid out in four rounds.

This was Lynch's first bid for real fame. In a moment he was classed with Champion Pete Herman, who had outpointed Williams for the bantam title, and Johnny Ertle, who had been credited with winning over Williams on a foul.

Lost To Jimmy Wilde.

Dick Loadman knocked out Ertle, and Lynch beat Loadman in twelve rounds, decision, at Providence, R. I. This boy Loadman was a great little fighter. When Joe was in the Army and about to go overseas he met Loadman again in a four-round fight at Madison Square Garden, for the Army athletic fund, and although the boys were fighting for nothing they went through that four rounds like a couple of tiger cats.

Lynch lost a four-round decision to Jimmy Wilde in London at the inter-allied tournament. It was generally said, even by English sportsmen, that the decision was wrong, but Lynch was too good a sportsman himself to make any comment at all. He evened the score with Wilde afterward in a longer bout.

After the war Joe began the spectacular rush that took him up to the championship. Tex Rickard matched him with Jack Sharkey, the indomitable little Italian. Jack knocked Joe down several times in early rounds and it looked as if Lynch might be neatly polished off. But Joe came back stronger and full of aggression, outfought and outlasted Sharkey and at the end of fifteen rounds had gone so far into the lead that he easily earned a draw. When they were rematched, a couple of months later, the Garden was packed to the roof. This time Lynch forced the fighting from the start, hammered Sharkey all over the ring and, in spite of furious resistance, finished him with a clean knock-out in the fifteenth round.

Champion Is Square Little Sport.

When Champion Pete Herman fought Lynch he had little idea of being defeated, for he was matched for a championship bout with Jimmy Wilde in England a couple of weeks later. Lynch offset Herman's skill by steadily attacking, and had so much the better of it that there was no questioning the decision that gave him the title. Herman went to England and stopped Jimmy Wilde in a few rounds. The credit he might get by this performance is somewhat lessened by the fact that he failed to make the weight—118 pounds—coming into the ring an actual feather-weight, while Wilde is a little bit of a fellow, very little over 100 pounds in weight. In fact, during the war Wilde was rejected for army service several times because he weighed only ninety-eight pounds.

Herman will undoubtedly be given a return fight with Lynch, and it ought to be a rattling battle. Chances are, though, that Joe Lynch will be champion when it's over, and for some time to come.

Just one line more about Joe Lynch. He is a thorough sportsman. He enjoys boxing. It's a sport for Joe, rather than a profession. I've watched him in many hard fights and have always noticed his superlative fairness. He never takes an unfair advantage in the ring. He always gives the other fellow an even break or better.

For instance, when Joe fought his hard ten-round draw with Jack Sharkey last September, Sharkey's plunges in the third round sent Joe partly through the ropes. As he tried to regain his balance the upper rope came across his eyes for a moment and held him in a helpless position. Sharkey couldn't resist the temptation to let go a punch. It clipped Joe fairly on the point and dropped him to his knees for a five-second count. Joe was dazed and it was lucky for him that the bell rang a few seconds later.

In the sixth round Lynch, who had been knocked down again, suddenly took the aggressive and hammered Sharkey across the ring into the ropes. This time Sharkey was tangled for an instant and defenseless. Instead of hitting, Lynch smilingly held out both open hands, pulled Sharkey back to his balance and clear of the ropes, let go and stepped away a pace to let Sharkey recover.

It was a sportsmanlike action, worthy of a champion, especially as the fight had been going against Lynch and he was in danger of losing. Only his splendid recovery and driving finish earned him a draw.

Mack has a star in Perkins. He has a couple of other good prospects. At third base he has a coming star. As a matter of fact, Dugan has already arrived. Jimmy Dykes will deliver in fine style at second. He is a good ball player. If Griffin just hits a little he will do at first. Shortstop is a question, but Mack has several possibilities. The outfield also is problematical. So while Mack is on the way, he still has some distance to go.

Danny Murphy, a star of the olden days, acted as assistant to Manager Mack last year. Murphy has his full share of wit. I still get a laugh out of Murphy's explanation as to why the Athletics held down last place most of the 1920 campaign. I was working in Philadelphia during the boat races between the Resolute and the Shamrock. Just as I came out to start the game the announcer informed the crowd that the Resolute was leading by a quarter of a mile, whereupon one of the recruits turned to Murphy, who was sitting next to him on the bench, and said:

DEVELOPS THEM

"In what city are they holding that auto race?"

Murphy simply ignored him, and, turning to me, said:

"That explains why we are in last place."

Despite the fact that the Athletics have been riding along in last place a number of years, there is interest in the efforts Mack has been making to rebuild his ball club. Unquestionably Mack is the only developer of ball players among the major league managers. When most managers need to rejuvenate their club they go out into the open market and buy any major league players who are for sale, or select the cream of the minor leagues. Mack takes players no one ever heard of and makes stars out of them.

If Mack is able to add a bit of strength to his outfield, he will make trouble in 1921. He has a right smart pitching staff. With Perry, Naylor, Rommell, Harris and Keefe going good, the Athletics are sure of good pitching. In Roy Moore, Mack has a southpaw who has as much stuff as any left-hander in the American league. Moore has a great opportunity. He lacks poise and confidence that comes only with a little success. If he could win a few ball games in succession, it might be the making of him. Then he has big Hasty, who has considerable promise. A legion of fans the country over are pulling for him to come through.

Beer By Case For Ailing; Palmer's Decision Stands

Doctors' Permits For Purchase Of Tonic Will Be Issued Soon—Ruling Held To Overthrow Entire Prohibition Enforcement Theory

Washington, March 12.—Former Attorney General Palmer's recent ruling permitting virtually unlimited manufacture of beer, wines and whiskey for medicinal purposes will stand, Solicitor General Frierson said today, despite protests, unless the Treasury Department should ask for its reconsideration. Such a request is not under contemplation, it was said at the Treasury.

Opinions are issued by the Department of Justice only to the President and members of the Cabinet, Mr. Frierson explained, and are not matters in which private individuals may participate. A review would only be made, he added, on motion of the department originally making the request and a change made where an error of law was found.

Regulations to provide for the use of beer medically will be issued as soon as they can be prepared, Prohibition officials declared, although they had been delayed in earlier preparation on the possibility of the opinion being reconsidered.

Under the most recent interpretation of the Prohibition law, officials declared it would appear that a patient for whom beer was prescribed would be able to obtain it by the case, as it would probably be ordered as a tonic and it would appear unreasonable to require a person to procure only one or two bottles at a time.

Study of the new ruling, officials said, has disclosed that the whole theory of Prohibition enforcement on which the Internal Revenue Bureau has been proceeding has been overthrown. The Prohibition unit, officials explained, has worked on the theory that it possessed regulatory powers under the act which permit it to limit the use and distribution of intoxicants excepted by Congress from the general ban. By the most recent view of the law, however, officials maintained, it would seem that this theory is now denied.

Existing regulations will have to be considerably amended, officials said, as various rules heretofore promulgated by the Bureau are affected more or less directly by the opinion. Drafting of new regulations which had been tentatively agreed upon before the opinion was received, and which would have further restricted the distribution of intoxicants, have been halted, they added, pending determination of whether they coincide with the Justice Department's view of the law.

Mystery Surrounds Movements Of Tuan

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, April 16.—History may have to record Prince Tuan, Boxer leader and monarchist, as one of the famous willo' the wisps. Just now he seems to have the edge on Charlie Ross and alleged survivors of Russia's royal family in the matter of appearances and disappearances.

Prince Tuan was yesterday reported to be hiding in two places in the East City. One report reaching the Government was that he had taken refuge in the home of a friend and the other, that he was hiding in a certain Lama temple. It was but a few days ago that the Government announced it had sent him on his way to exile in Chinese Turkestan. This announcement was followed by another that the aged prince had begun the trip but was so weak and ill that he was allowed to remain a few days longer. He was then said to be in the Central Hospital. The Government gave assurances that he was under guard and carefully watched.

Just when this watch ceased is not stated but the Government has now appealed to the Ching family for help, asking that Prince Tuan be at once sent back to his exile. It was suggested that for one supposed to be so decrepit, the Prince has shown remarkable agility in his jaunts about the capital. The puzzle now is to find the Prince.

STOKES DIVORCE LIKE REAL NOVEL

Aged Husband, Beautiful Wife —Youthful Admirers, According To Servants

New York, March 12.—If the writers of the old-fashioned "society novels," could examine the rambling pages of the stenographer's note-book recording the four days of the divorce trial of W. E. D. Stokes the obvious reaction would be a lurking sense of plagiarism.

The aged husband; the beautiful but tempestuous wife, thirty years younger; gossiping servants, enraged at their mistress; youthful admirers—all are recorded in the testimony.

Considered only in the light of a divorce trial, the Stokes proceeding leaves even the hardened official observer baffled. Never before, at least in their memory, have so many co-respondents been assembled as in the cramped court room of Supreme Court Justice Finch. And with unerring precision each day of the trial brought forth another co-respondent, so that tomorrow the court room will hold four of them, and possibly five.

The jumble of testimony produced so far and the volumes promised in the near future are designed by Mr. Stokes to obtain his divorce, by Mrs. Stokes a separation and the custody of her two children, James and Muriel.

TO TELL HER OWN STORY

Before the week is over Mrs. Stokes will go on the stand and tell her own story for the first time. She will review her husband's life, their marriage, their quarrels, and she will seek to refute the testimony of her servants.

Perhaps a clearer view of Who's Who in this unusual action may be had by gathering together the list of characters. Thus:

W. E. D. Stokes, grim-visaged, silver-haired millionaire sportsman. The divorce proceeding appears to the millionaire in the light of earnest business. As the legal machine threshes point by point his massive head is bent over his pad, and he scribbles notes of the testimony. Rarely does he smile, and when he does it is with a trace of bitterness.

Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes—dainty, doll-like features, smartly dressed, thirty years younger than her husband and obviously of different temperament. She maintains an expressionless pose, except when her red lips tremble indignantly at some particularly racy bit of testimony, or soften into a smile when her attorney scores a point under cross-examination.

THE CO-RESPONDENTS

Hal Billig—co-respondent No. 1—A natty youth, blond hair slicked down in the middle, well-dressed, square-shouldered. Billig is Mrs. Stokes's cousin.

George Schroeder—co-respondent No. 2—tall, graceful, gray-haired, expressive features, and altogether the most interesting of his colleagues.

Will Meyers—co-respondent No. 3—tall, bald-headed angular, and boyhood friend of Mrs. Stokes.

Roland Miller—co-respondent No. 4—Mrs. Stokes's stepbrother, middle-sized, dark-haired, sturdy, with a square jaw.

The "dark young man"—co-respondent No. 5—the domestic who projected him gave only this description of him and nothing more.

Mrs. Miller—Mrs. Stokes's mother—a small, graceful, middle-aged woman, who toys continually with a lorgnette.

And now for the Stokes servants, the only witnesses who have testified. First comes the accuser of Hal Billig. Miss Juliette Gassner, former nurse girl and companion of Mrs. Stokes, an attractive, slender, darkhaired young woman, who speaks broken English, but clings tenaciously to her story in the withering fire of cross-examination.

Now enter Mrs. Anna Brennan, presenting the "darkhaired young man." Following her is her "dear friend," Mrs. Strube, who produced damaging testimony against Hal Billig. Then comes the butler, with his story of Schroeder, and between them all are injected the other co-respondents.

Ex-President Li Promoting School

(China Press Correspondence)

Hankow, April 14.—Since his retirement from political life, ex-President Li Yuan-hung, a resident in Tientsin for the past few years, has been interesting himself in promoting the Wuhan University for the tri-polis of Wuchang, Hankow and Hanyang, where he emerged from comparatively low rank to nation-wide prominency in the 1911 Revolution of Wuchang.

Owing to unsettled conditions in the country for several years, ex-President Li has not been able to secure funds to establish the proposed Wuhan University on a stable basis, though for several times unsuccessful attempts were made by his representative in Wuchang to open an institution in Wuchang with some semblance of a university. Recently, it is reported, he has received an encouraging start in his project by some of his American friends having promised to back him up by a generous gift of school apparatus.

Mr. Sun Sung-kong, representative of the ex-President in Hankow, received two telegrams from him last week advising him to go ahead with the project in Hankow. Besides, a sum of 40,000 taels has been remitted from Tientsin to Mr. Sun to be used in opening the Wuhan University in Hankow.

At present the headquarters of the preparation committee are in the Foo Teh Academy, the private enterprise of Mr. Liu Tze-chin, a prominent merchant and proprietor of the largest modern egg factories in the interior of China. Unless some better site can be secured, it is understood the Wuhan University will be amalgamated with the Foo Teh Academy of Hankow.

Japs Accused Of Buying Publicity

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, April 15.—The Chen Pao, Peking's progressive party sheet, in its issue of the 15th, calls attention to Japan's change of attitude toward China within the past two years, in that it no longer attempts to settle Sino-Japanese differences through secret session with officials of the Republic whose patriotism is questionable. It is pointed out that though the Japanese have spent, and are continuing to spend large sums toward the establishment of newspapers and news agencies in China that will serve to disseminate pro-Japanese propaganda, the success of the endeavor is difficult to observe. Of particular importance is the statement that when Japan's representative of the Far Eastern Press Conference, now in session in Tokio, was in China, it was hinted to Chinese newspaper men that subsidies would be forthcoming upon the publication of news stuff favorable to Japan, the subsidies being in effect as follows: payments to be made monthly: $1,000 for defending Japan's policies in China; $500 for publishing no criticisms of Japan; $300 for refraining from attacking Japan, and $100 for maintaining an attitude of respect toward the Empire of the Rising Sun.

Hunan Students Ask For University

(China Press Correspondence)

Hankow, April 12.—The Hunan Students Union of Changsha has requested the drafting committee of the Hunan Provincial Self-Government Fundamental Constitution now at work in Changsha to include in the constitution the establishment of a Hunan University to provide higher education for Hunanese. Delegates of the Students Union have already interviewed the chairman of the committee and presented to the committee the growing need for a standard institution of higher learning in Hunan province.

The work of the drafting committee is about to be finished and on April 20, General Chao Heng-ti, Commander-in-Chief of Hunan will convene a meeting in Changsha to gather representatives of all districts of Hunan to obtain their approval to the constitution drafted.

The new Hunan constitution expects to be an excellent one, as most members of the drafting committee are distinguished Chinese experts educated in America or Britain. At the request of the Hunan governor, Dr. C. T. Wang, China's Peace Delegate at Versailles, visited Changsha in March to help in the important task of drafting Hunan constitution.

First Agriculture Bulletin Appears

University Of Nanking Man Publishes Pamphlet On "Deeper Plowing"

The first of what is to be a series of Farmer's bulletins has just been published by the College of Agriculture and Forestry of the University of Nanking. The pamphlet is written in simple language by Mr. Shao Teh-hsing, a senior student in the college. Mr. Shao is particularly qualified for writing such a bulletin, because of his farm experience as a boy, and his practical experience in agricultural work at the Chuchow Government Ranch and at the Presbyterian Mission Station at Nanhsuchow, Anhui.

The subject dealt with in this bulletin is "Deeper Plowing." Some of the advantages of deeper plowing which are mentioned are the increased waterholding capacity of the soil, the increased feeding area for the roots of plants, the increased root growth due to a larger area of loose soil and similar benefits, all as a result of deeper plowing.

The front page has a symbol of Chinese agriculture, the plow and rice heads. On the back page there is a simple statement about Christianity, and the recipient of the bulletin is urged to go to the nearest evangelist or pastor to learn more about the Gospel.

The College has printed a large number of these pamphlets and it is hoped that many mission stations will find use for them in their work among the country people. They will be furnished at the cost price of $6 per thousand, postage prepaid, to those who desire them.

Vers Libre Poet And Bride Welcomed By Ellermans

Sir John And His Wife Approve Of Adopted Daughter's Choice—Bridal Couple On Continent —She Has A Fortune Of $5,000,000

London, March 12.—Mr. and Mrs. Robert McAlmon, whose recent romantic marriage in New York was discovered by The World, are now traveling on the Continent, having made only a brief stay in London on their return here. The bride is the adopted daughter of Sir John Ellerman. Lady Ellerman is deeply devoted to her.

Mrs. McAlmon already has a fortune of £1,000,000 sterling ($5,000,000) settled on her. Sir John Ellerman has only one child, a son, who will naturally inherit the bulk of his great wealth as well as his title.

Mrs. McAlmon's unconventional manner of handling her matrimonial affairs did not surprise her adoptive parents or her friends. On her return she was received with open arms. Her family quite approves of her choice now that they have become personally acquainted with her husband.

Mrs. McAlmon is a young woman of extremely independent character, and although she is only twenty-six, has traveled all over the world and lived in out-of-the-way places. Her special devotion is to Greece. She is an enthusiastic Greek scholar and has translated some Greek classics into English blank verse, her efforts having received high commendation by literary critics.

She has published a number of sketches of American life and scenery in The Sphere, one of her adoptive father's many newspapers, under her pen name, Winifred Bryher. The young couple propose to wander far and near, but will probably settle eventually in California.

It is said here that The World's estimate of Sir John Ellerman's fortune is conservative, and that it must be nearer $150,000,000 than $100,000,000. He is reputed to be the second largest payer of the income super-tax in Great Britain.

Sir John Ellerman was married in 1908, and his son was born in 1909. In her affidavit, filed with the application for a marriage license, Miss Ellerman gave her mother's name as Annie Glover, who may have been a sister of the bride's mother.

SHE PROPOSED

Minneapolis, March 12.—"Certainly she proposed—but that's nothing unusual these days. I'd do the same thing to the right man."

That's what Victoria McAlmon thinks of her brother Bob's marriage to Winifred Ellerman in New York. She laughed.

Miss McAlmon is head of the Board of Education Placement Bureau and known by her friends as a practical young business woman, not of the spinster or Suffrage type, but rather clever and independent—and attractive. "Brother Bob"—Robert McAlmon—by the way, was a cub reporter on the Daily News seven years ago. He attended school in Minneapolis and the University of Minnesota and then went to New York to become a Greenwich Village writer.

Miss Ellerman told Miss Victoria McAlmon in a letter that she was attracted by a poem Robert McAlmon wrote, stayed in Greenwich Village and they fell in love. Robert, she said, had nothing but his talent and wouldn't propose because Miss Ellerman's father is Sir John Ellerman, worth $10,000,000, Miss Ellerman solved the problem by proposing herself.

TEN-DAY SERVICE KOBE-TIENTSIN

O.S.K. To Add Kana Maru In May—Baikal Maru To Replace Smaller Ship To Dairen

The Osaka Shosen Kaisha announces that it will inaugurate a 10-day service between Kobe and Tientsin beginning early in May.

This line now has a fortnightly service and the change will be made possible by placing on the run the new steamer Kana Maru, which was launched last November at Osaka. The Kana is of 3,559 deadweight tons and has a speed of 13½ knots, having accommodations for 28 first class and 63 third class passengers. The addition of the Kana Maru will make three steamers on the Kobe-Tientsin line.

With the addition of the steamer Baikal Maru, now being completed at the Mitsubishi dockyards at Nagasaki, the O.S.K. hopes to improve greatly its Kobe-Dairen service. The Baikal Maru will be like the Harbin, a real passenger and mail boat of 6,000 tons. Its sister ship, the Harbin Maru, which is now on the run to Dairen, has accommodations for 55 first, 113 second and 474 steerage passengers. Four O.S.K. ships are on the Dairen run now and one is to be taken off when the Baikal Maru is added to the service. Three of the ships on the run are of 3,000 tons each.

Hankow Market

The British Chamber of Commerce of Hankow write as follows in their weekly circular dated Hankow, April 13:

FINANCE AND MONEY MARKET

We have to report another quiet week with very little business passing. Banks have been keen sellers at rates varying from 1d to 3d over quotations. Bills have been scarce and keenly competed for. Taels T.T. on Shanghai: The market rose to 97.425 with foreign Banks unwilling sellers, at 97¾. Dollars: Chinese market 70.05—70.25 buyers and sellers respectively. Native Interest: 4 percent.

EXPORTS

There is still no business to report and with the exception of Liquid Yolk there is no demand from Home. Sesamum Seed and Wood Oil remain firmly held at prices above the parity of Home values.

IMPORTS

Piece Goods.—There is no improvement in business or prices and the market is lifeless.

Yarn.—Prices are firm with an upward tendency. There is still a good demand for stock, and clearances continue brisk.

The Railway Car Loan Chinese Banking Group
POSTPONEMENT OF DATE FOR OPENING TENDERS

Upon the request of some of the bidders, we and the Ministry of Communications agree to postpone the date of opening the tenders for wagons and locomotives to be furnished to the Chinese Railways to 2 p.m., June 29th, 1921 instead of June 15th, 1921 as advertised previously in order to give the bidders more time to make careful estimates.

Drawings and specifications for the six locomotives of the English type for the Shanghai-Hangchow-Ningpo Railway are ready and may be obtained from the head office of the Chinese Banking Group upon payment of $10.00 (Chinese Currency). As these drawings and specifications are thirty sets in all, each bidder is limited to one set only.

We beg to inform the bidders that from April 12th, 1921, the drawings and specifications for the wagons and locomotives of the Prairie, Mikado and Pacific types are no more on sale.

THE growing port of Seattle is taking an active interest in foreign trade, especially the trade of China and Japan. Reports of the United States Customs show a constant increase in Seattle's foreign trade and ocean shipping. In the development of this foreign trade the National Bank of Commerce has taken a prominent part, consistent with its position as one of the largest and most progressive banks on the Pacific Coast.

This is one of the nine great American banks which are stockholders in the Asia Banking Corporation.

Radella Rubber Estate

SATISFACTORY CONDITION OF THE PROPERTY

The eleventh ordinary general meeting of the shareholders of Radella Rubber Estate, Ltd., was held on Thursday, March 24, at 4, Fort Road, Malacca, Major W. M. Sime, O.B.E., presiding.

Following the usual preliminaries the Chairman said: With your permission I will take the accounts as read. The year's working has resulted in a loss of $2,526.48. Deducting this from the balance at credit of profit and loss account we are left with $19,355.72 at credit of that account, and this your directors recommend be carried forward to next account.

At the end of September the board decided to stop all tapping, and this was given effect to during October and November. If tapping had been continued, doubtless the above book loss would have been less, but fortunately the company is in a comfortable position financially and is not compelled to tap its trees at present prices. As you will see, all expenditure has been charged to revenue account.

In the meantime, the estate is being upkept in good condition and thinning out is proceeding. Poorer areas have been silt pitted. The estate is in better condition today than it has been for years, and the bark renewal is very satisfactory. At the general meeting last year, the chairman referred to the matter of cutting out old rubber and replanting, and remarked that the directors were then undecided as to whether or not further areas should be cut out. There need be no further indecision on this point. The 19 acres which were cut out and replanted in 1918 have not done particularly well: whereas the old rubber all over has improved and will again yield well long before the replanted areas can come into bearing. No further areas will be cut out.

The financial position today is $15,807.07 at credit of current account and $20,000 invested on first mortgage on house property in the town of Malacca, making a total of $35,807.07. If need be, the estate can carry on for a further 18 months to two years without tapping. When the rubber market rises to a payable level, your directors propose to recommence tapping on the alternate day system, and they propose to adhere to that system for the future. The yield is likely to be satisfactory and I can predict that the cost of production per lb. will be lower than it has been in any previous year.

With regard to the prospects of the planting industry in the near future, they are anything but bright. It is a pity that the R.G.A., when they approved of legislation to restrict output to 50 percent, did not at the same time ask its members to adopt the restriction voluntarily pending possible legislation. It is a pity that the Government of this country, when asked to approach the Netherlands Indies Government, did not say at once they had no intention of doing so. Between vacillation in the one case and want of frankness in the other, we have gone from bad to worse. However, we do not despair. I hope to hear that the R.G.A. will again get to work on its members to obtain a greater measure of restriction voluntarily. Local interests I am sure will promptly fall in line as they did before.

The report and accounts were duly passed, and the only other business was the unanimous election of Mr. H. E. Burgess as a director of the company, and the re-appointment of Messrs. Derrick and Co. as auditors.

The proceedings then terminated with a vote of thanks to the Chair.

China's Enemy

IN his interview with Reuter's Vancouver correspondent, Dr. Wang Chung-hui, China's representative to the Geneva conference which is to revise the League of Nations covenant, does not designate Japan as China's enemy.

But if we study his statements further it is noted that he designates as "enemies" to China the three weapons with which China's enemy strikes. China's real and actual enemy is the nation which uses these weapons, the one nation to which these weapons are available.

Using these weapons this nation can cause the so-called "open door" to become a ludicrous fallacy, can wrest from China her vast resources and utilise her limitless man power, one as an instrument of aggrandisement and the other as a means of assuring conquest.

Dr. Wang cites as the three "enemies" of China:

1. Article 21 of the League of Nations Covenant.
2. The Anglo-Japanese Alliance.
3. The Lansing-Ishii notes.

In article 21 in the covenant of the League of Nations, the authors propounded the doctrine of regional understandings without realising the danger to the peace of the Orient and the world. This would allow the enemy of China to pursue a policy of oppression and agression. Japan has special aspirations in the Orient and this article recognises these aspirations.

No thinking Chinese can set his mind at ease so long as the Anglo-Japanese Alliance exists. Recent indications point to the probable renewal of the alliance. Article III. of the treaty says "Japan, possessing paramount political, military and economic interests in Korea, Great Britain recognises the right of Japan to take such measures—in Korea as she may deem proper—provided that such measures are not contrary to the principle of equal opportunities for the commerce and industry of all nations."

It is well-known that three months after the renewal of the alliance in 1905, Japan established a protectorate over the Hermit Kingdom and five years later, she formally annexed it.

Many Chinese are fearful that so long as things remain as they are, history will repeat itself.

Adverse criticism directed towards the Lansing-Ishii notes is centered on four points.

A. The terms in the notes appear to be self-contradictory.

B. "Special interest" is a vague term but it implies special privileges contradictory to the "Open Door" policy.

C. The principle upon which these "special interests" were built, that of geographical propinquity, does not seem to be valid.

D. China was not a party to the negotiations and her sovereignty was ignored.

John Hay's espousal of the "open door" was a fight against "special interests" and unequal opportunities. But the thinking Chinese today believe that China's enemies may be defeated, that the weapons which would inflict punishment on China and her people may be wrested from the only nation who would or could use them. The Chinese have hopes in three directions:

1. A revision of the League Covenant.
2. President Harding's stand on awards made by the peace treaty.
3. Great Britain's delay in renewing her alliance with Japan.

America will not join the League of Nations unless the covenant is revised. Britain's decision to renew the alliance with Japan is delayed. Britain wants America's friendship and support and America desires nothing but peace with Britain.

At the convention which is to revise the League covenant China is to be represented by the man who so exactly has designated China's enemies. He has left it to the world to realise which nation, if any of all nations, would use these weapons against China.

It would be hard for China to find a better man to represent her at the Geneva deliberations. Dr. Wang was educated at Yale and also studied in universities of England, France and Germany. He was in the Ministry of Justice at Peking and was a member of the Law Codication Commission.

Dr. Wang seeks to disarm China's enemy by depriving that enemy of the use of those three factors which he designates as "China's enemies."

Betelguese

BY EDGAR LUCIEN LARKIN
(Didector of Mt. Lowe Observatory)

A. A. Michelson says that the probable error of his classic and ever to be historic measurement of the diameter of this huge sun lies within the limits of 10 per centum of 300,000,000 miles, plus or minus. Then it may be 270 or 330 million miles. In this note the diameter will be taken as 300,000,000 miles, and with this value a number of interesting conclusions may be drawn.

The diameter of our modest sun is known to be 866,000 miles, based on a parallax of 8.8 seconds of arc and mean diameter of the earth—7,916 miles. Then 300,000,000 divided by 866,000 gives a quotient of 346. This is the diameter of Betelguese, that of our sun being 1. Volumes of spheres are to each other as are the cubes of like dimensions. The cube of 346 is 43,421,736. That is, Betelguese is that many times larger than our sun. The diameter of the orbit of Mars is 283,000,000 miles; therefore, Betelguese would extend 8,500,000 miles beyond. The orbits of Mercury, Venus and Mars would be submerged in its colossal volume.

Suppose that its density is the same as that of our sun, which is 1.41; that is, it is 41 per centum more dense than if composed entirely of pure water. Then its mass or quantity of matter would be 41,421,736 times greater than the mass of our sun. Newton made the immortal discovery that the attraction of gravitation exerted by all known matter varies directly as to mass and inversely as to the square of the distance from the center of gravity of the mass. Now find the force of attraction exerted by the mass of Betelguese on a body on its surface.

It must be mass divided by the square of the distance from its center. The radius of the sun is 1; and of Betelguese 346, whose square is 119,716. Then 41,421,736 divided by 119,716 equals 346. Then a body on the surface of Betelguese would weigh 346 times more than if on the surface of our sun, on the hypothesis that they are of equal density.

Let the same formulas be applied to the earth and Betelguese on the theory that they are of the same density. Since the volume of Betelguese is 54,431,320,994,792 times that of the earth, it would contain that many times more matter than is in the earth, if equally dense throughout.

The radius of the Earth is 1, and of Betelguese 37,898 whose square is 1,436,258,404. Then 54,431,320,994,792 divided by 1,436,258,404 equals 37,898. A stone on the surface of the Earth weighing 1 ton would weigh 37,898 tons on the surface of Betelguese.

But surely the density of Betelguese cannot be anywhere near the density of either our sun or earth, which is 5.63 times that of water. For all other suns within appreciable gravitational distances would revolve around it. No such orbital motion is discovered in the suns in adjacent Orion or Taurus.

Proper motions of suns across our straight line of sight at varying angles are like those in all other directions in the sidereal structure. All suns within quadrillions of miles would be attracted by Betelguese if even half the density of our sun and forced into regular orbits around it.

It must be gaseous; but it is brilliant, and bright light shows that terrific energy, atomic and molecular, works at high rates. The whole subject of turbulent gas in frigid voids at the absolute zero of temperature is one worthy of continued study.

THE LEAGUE OF NOTIONS

Mr. C. B. Cochran has made a tremendous hit with his new attraction at the New Oxford, London, entitled "The League of Notions." It has already become a household word, or rather phrase, and an example of the quick manner in which we get used to a new thing—and forget an old one—is contained in a remark which is alleged to have fallen from the lips of an enthusiastic theatergoer.

"Well, I never!" she exclaimed, laying down her newspaper one morning. "Fancy politics borrowing from the stage! I see the big world conference has borrowed its title from the Oxford new revue, and is calling itself 'The League of Nations,' rather smart though isn't it?"

Her attitude of mind was not unlike that of the child who, when asked her father's name, replied, "The same as mine—isn't it funny?"

PEPPER AND PEAS

Miss Dorothy Tetley is an actress who is making a big hit in Basil Hasting's new farce "Hanky Panky John." She related a neat little story at a certain function a little time ago. It was all about a school teacher who was examining her class in general knowledge. One of her questions was, "What is pepper?" Here is one young hopeful's answer in verse:

"What is pepper children?"
"What makes pepper please?"
"Pepper," answered Winnie,
"Is made half of peas."

"No? Well, just you spell it!"
Teacher did with ease,
There were just six letters;
Half of them were P's.

MOVE ALONG PLEASE

Some couple of months ago when passengers had passed through the barriers at Oxford Circus Station, London, and had set foot upon the escalator, they were startled by a loud cry, proceeding from below, "Keep moving, please!" Other admonitory shouts followed: "Let others pass on the left!" "If you must stand, stand on the right!" "Now then there, keep moving on the left! Some are in a hurry; don't impede them!" The voice proceeded from a wooden structure, about three feet square, at the foot of the escalator. It is called the "automatic stentophone," and is worked by compressed air. One gramaphone record will last a week.

A witty writer in one of the London weeklies comments upon the contrivance thus:

"Keep moving please!" it shouts in accents gruff,
As on the moving rail I idly lean;
Being bullied by a wife is bad enough,
I will not stand it from a mere machine!
Moreover if by yells of raucous tone
I really must be constantly annoyed,
Then why on earth employ a Stentophone?
Are there no sergeant-majors unemployed?

TIT FOR TAT

A certain well known pianist was recently invited to dine with a wealthy man, who was the owner of a large boot factory and had been a shoemaker in his time.

After the repast, the pianist was requested to play something and he consented.

Not long afterwards he invited the boot manufacturer to his house, and when dinner was over handed him a pair of boots.

"What am I to do with these?" asked the rich man.

With a genial smile the pianist replied: "Why, the other day after dinner you asked me to make a little music for you, and now I ask you to mend these boots for me. Each man to his trade."

The Revolt Among Women Of France -:- By Marcel Prevost

BY MARCEL PREVOST
(Immortal of the French Academy; by many critics considered the ablest delineator of feminine character in fiction since Balzac)

A revolution is taking place in French literature. As a result of this revolution our entire literature—the drama, the novel, even the cinema—will have to be written hereafter from an altogether new point of view.

This revolution has come about because the Frenchwoman has become different. The best example of what I mean is the French girl, say of eighteen, with a sweetheart of say twenty. When you see them going about Paris that way you are seeing something that was never seen on the boulevards of Paris before.

If I sat on the Boulevard des Capucines, before the Cafe Napolitain, for example, for half an hour, I could point out at least a hundred such couples. Five years ago you could not have seen half a dozen, if as many as that.

I know Americans and Englishmen would be puzzled. But let me explain. We Frenchmen, who read popular novels by English speaking writers before the war, who saw your plays and your cinemas, were always more amused than we were convinced. Our attitude was one of elderly indulgence.

We saw girls in their 'teens and boys of the same age, heroes and heroines, making love, intriguing, marrying. We smiled. Nursery romances, nursery amours, they seemed to us. It was all so juvenile, so immature and trivial. A girl of twenty in love with a mere stripling of twenty! It wasn't life. It wasn't assuredly, French life. Nor was there anything in our literature to compare with it.

With us, the girl of twenty felt nothing but contempt for the youth of her own age. She could never accept him as a lover, or even as an intimate friend. Her choice was always the mature man, the man of the world, the adult wise in matters of love, shrewd in matters of romance, expert in matters of intrigue.

The boy of twenty had no place in her scheme of life. He was relegated to the drudgery of his studies or his career, and whatever meagre affection was bestowed on him came from indiscriminate maiden ladies or over-indulgent elderly female relatives.

Our literature reflected our life. Our literary tradition had its roots in this universal predilection of the young girl for the older man. Whether in the novel, the drama or the cinema, it was the man of forty always who courted, won, and sometimes even married the girl of twenty.

PRINCE CHARMING WAS 40

Prince Charming of the young girl's day-dreams was never a smooth-chinned stripling in his salad stage. For every popular novel with a hero under twenty-five I can mention a score whose hero is over forty. Nursery romances were as rare in our literature as they were in our life.

And now all this has altered. To the American or Englishman, to whom the intimate association in love and friendship of young girls and boys is a commonplace of everyday life, this change may seem trivial. But to us in France it is momentous. And it is momentous chiefly insofar as our literature is concerned, for, as I have said, our novels, our dramas, our cinemas will have to be written from an entirely new point of view.

For the French girl of today no longer chooses the man of forty as her hero, her lover, her ideal. She chooses the youth of her own age. The man of the world, L'homme ruse, the man who has lived, has lost caste with her completely. The adult lover who previously made one bite of his younger rivals today is cast in the shadow by a mere stripling. The French girl has altered. Our literature must alter, too.

AWAKENED TO BEAUTY

I am asked what has brought about this extraordinary change in the attitude of the French girl. I reply, for the first time the Frenchwoman has awakened to masculine beauty. Here, in a sentence, is the explanation of the phenomenon. It was one of the unique qualities of our women that they never attached any importance whatever to masculine beauty. In popular American and English fiction, the heroes are always young, handsome, strong, brave. In ours we rarely set any store by these qualities, for our women were not drawn by them.

I do not think I can name a single woman of my acquaintance who five years ago would have had the courage to acknowledge that she was in love with a man because he was handsome. Such an acknowledgment would have been regarded as the betrayal of a trival, if not a depraved, nature. But today there are only a few phrases in which girls boast of their lovers; he is so good-looking, he is so well made, he bears himself so well.

There is no hesitancy in confessing that one has been captured by a handsome face, a fine figure, an impressive bearing. And since these qualities are preeminently the qualities of youth, well—that is the answer.

WAR AND ALLIES DID IT

What has brought this about? In a word, the war. During the war the French girl for the first time was accorded the liberty which her English and American sisters have so long enjoyed. And this liberty was accorded her at a time when France was invaded by youth—the flower of the Allied armies. The French girl used her liberty to good purpose; she gave her time and her energies to various war activities. A very large percentage of our girls became nurses in the war hospitals. It is here that they found themselves in a very unique circumstance.

Women are very poor judges of character or quality in a man. I rarely bring a distinguished friend to a drawing room where he is not known without immediately identifying him to the hostess; otherwise she would be at a loss what to make of him. Properly tagged in advance, she will pay him the deference that is his due. With his label or his title to guide her, she is able to employ the most adroit finesse in her adulation or indifference, as the case may be.

But the dilemma of the young girls in the hospitals was unrelieved by the titles and labels that might guide them. The men with whom they came in contact there all dressed alike, they were stripped of class distinctions, they were just cogs in the great democratic military machine. Even distinctions of rank disappeared in the hospital wards. All men were heroes alike.

All were of the same profession, all were far from their kin and their own environment. They were the vast average of their nation placed against a blank background. They were neither rich nor poor, distinguished nor humble, influential nor unimportant.

In the absence of all the earmarks of social distinction, the young girl naturally found herself making the only simple elemental spontaneous judgment the circumstances would permit; a judgment based on personal attraction.

NATURAL CHANNEL AT LAST

It was in such circumstances that there awakened in the French girl an admiration for masculine beauty, an admiration which presently it was not even necessary to defend, so universal did it become. The stream of nature's process of selection, which in French blundered for many years through a thicket of artificial, social and far-sought intellectual distinctions, found a natural channel at last.

And so you see these young girls everywhere in France now, on the boulevards of Paris, at the theater, at the dance halls. To us it is still a strange sight. We are not quite accustomed to it yet. In my recent novel, "Mon Cher Tommy," I dealt with this interesting phenomenon. Many critics threw up their hands with horror. But they will soon grow hardened to such a radical departure from a pet literary tradition; that of the young girl and the nature lover.

For, if our literature is to remain a true reflection of life, it will have to take into account the new attitude of the Frenchwoman toward man. And it will.

And I will add something which I would not dare acknowledge to a French public. The young French boy of today, the stripling of nineteen and twenty, earns more than many a man of forty did before the war. He can support a wife and family on his salary. Make what you will of that!

Hall's Distemper has led the way to a new era in house decoration—the era of brighter, cleaner and healthier homes.

It is the most durable of all decorations, lasting for years with freshness unimpaired, whereas wall-papers deteriorate from the first day by fading and accumulating dust and dirt.

Hall's Distemper is a thorough disinfectant, and is applied directly upon the wall, forming a hard surface, from which dust and dirt may be "spring-cleaned" by lightly sponging with warm water.

Hall's Distemper (Registered Trade Mark) is a unique preparation and has the recommendation of leading sanitary authorities, architects, and decorators everywhere.

"Hatamen" Prize Competition

What a lot of amusement the old fashioned Spelling Bee, or Word Competition, afforded to both old and young!

We are reviving it, and have pleasure therefore in offering three Cash Prizes of:—

Mex. $15 Mex. $10 Mex. $5

to those making the greatest number of different words out of the 13 letters forming the name of our excellent Brand of Shanghai-made cigarettes called:—

"HATAMEN" MAGNUM

For example:—

MAN MET A MATE AT HATAMEN GATE

These words are all composed from the letters forming HATAMEN MAGNUM.

(The man and his mate were observed to be smoking Hatamen cigarettes at the time).

THE CONDITIONS GOVERNING THIS COMPETITION ARE AS FOLLOWS:—

1.—Boys and Girls of all ages (from 1 to 100 years) are invited to compete.

2.—Only words in use in the English language are good, such words to be found in any standard dictionary.

3.—Words of same spelling but different meanings count as One.

4.—Lists of words sent in must be clearly written or typed under their respective alphabetical letters. All words commencing with A to be under "A," and so on.

5.—The First and Second Prizes of $15 and $10 will be awarded the two longest lists of different words, and the Third Prize of $5 will be awarded to the list which, in our opinion, is most neatly and carefully drawn up, as we wish to encourage the old fashioned art of "taking pains" amongst boys and girls.

6.—Lists should be written or typed clearly with the name and address of sender attached, and the total of words clearly stated.

Such lists should be addressed to

BLUE LAW JAZZ

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

A nice, pleasant-faced young man came into our office the other afternoon with an idea. He had just read that jazz music is to be sterilised and popular songs brought up to such a moral plane that they can be sung in any home without bringing the blush of shame to the face of the youngest child.

He had spent two weeks writing the kind of songs he thinks are sufficiently jazzy to be popular and at the same time proper enough to pass the censors.

We didn't want to buy the songs, not being in the song publishing business, and moreover not knowing much about songs, anyway. So he asked us to print them so the readers of the paper could pass upon them. Here is the first:

THE BOOTLEGGER'S REFORMATION

A man sold bootleg whiskey
In Hackensack, N. J.—
An occupation risky,
Or so I've heard folks say—
A little child came to him,
Her cheeks were round and red,
Her lovely eyes looked through him,
And this is what she said:
REFRAIN.
Don't sell that bootleg whiskey, man,
It hasn't aged enough.
If you will see my pa you can
Buy bonded warehouse stuff.
The boy that get this hooch off you
Goes out and fights with cops;
No man can get a healthy stew
Unless your traffic stops.
The bad man heard the maiden,
His hand began to shake,
His heart with sorrow laden
Was just about to break.
He was no common grafter,
Though he was rude and rough;
And all he sold thereafter
Was bonded warehouse stuff.

We failed to see that this song was moral, and told the young man so. But he said that he had a brother-in-law who dealt in good bonded warehouse brands with the revenue stamps on them, and that therefore he couldn't see any immorality in advocating its sale.

His next and last verse follows:

A young man named Dennis who liked to play tennis
And golf and such other wild games,
Was dreadfully crazy to wed little Daisy,
A girl with most praiseworthy aims.
But when to enfold her just under h's shoulder
And make a proposal he tried,
She tore herself from him, and seeking to calm him
In quiet, low accents she cried:
REFRAIN.
No fellow that's sporting can come to me courting;
He cannot behave as he should.
To wear a golf jacket or handle a racquet
Is proof that a man is not good.
All such avocations are just dissipations
As bad as tobacco and such,
You wouldn't be happy if married, young chappie,
You love recreation too much.
Thereafter young Dennis gave over his tennis
And sold all the golf clubs he had,
And being much steadied with Daisy he wedded
And now over her he is mad.
His parents have praised him, his bosses have raised him,
A dollar a week seven times—
Which proves, we assure you, that marriage will cure you
Of tennis and golf and such crimes.

A $600,000 Poker Game

BY KARL K. KITCHEN

I have this from Andreas de Segurola.

He saw it through his monocle in San Cristobal de la Habana. So believe it or not.

Andreas de Segurola, you know or maybe you don't know, resigned from the Metropolitan some months ago to become Director General of the Gran Casino de la Playa de Marianao in Cuba.

It might not be dignified to speak of the famous Spanish tenor as the mere manager of a gambling house, but I may speak of him as its Director General. For it was in that capacity that he witnessed what is undoubtedly the biggest poker game ever played anywhere.

"One evening about 11 o'clock," said de Segurola to me one night last week, "one of my Cuban friends asked me if I would like to join in a little game of poker at the Casino. I accepted his invitation, that is, until I entered the private room where his friends were sitting and saw their money on the table.

"There was $25,000 on the table, for each of the five players—three Cubans and two Americans—had chipped in $5,000.

"Now I like poker, but when I saw it would cost $5,000 to sit in the game I begged to be excused. It is well I did so. For the game continued without interruption from 11 o'clock that evening until after 6 o'clock the following evening—nearly twenty hours—and one of the players lost $520,000, another $90,000.

"I have seen big play in gambling houses all over the world, but I give you my word I have never seen anything like this game. They started in to play with $50 chips, but as it was a table stakes game the only thing they were used for was the $100 ante for the dealer.

"Thousand dollar bills were used at first and when the betting got so big that there were not enough big bills to go round, the players wrote the amounts of their bets on pieces of paper which they initialed and placed on the table.

"During the first hours of the game I only looked in from time to time, but in the morning—the players were served with breakfast while they continued playing—it became so exciting that I dropped everything to see it through. However, it was late in the afternoon that the really big play took place and this is what it was.

"One of the players—it would be indiscreet for me to say whether he was a Cuban or an American—after drawing two cards wrote '$100,000' on a little slip of paper which he initialed and threw it on the table. He had bet $100,000 on the five cards in his hand. Three of the others passed; the fourth player, however, who had drawn three cards, initialed another slip of paper for the same amount. Having drawn three cards, mind you, he called, for the sum of $100,000, the man who had drawn only two cards.

"What do you suppose they had?" de Segurola went on. "The player who bet the $100,000 laid down three tens. The man who called him and who had tossed in $100,000 without batting an eye held three kings and of course raked in the pot. It was the finest exhibition of poker nerve I have ever seen."

"I was present when the players settled. The principal loser gave his check for $70,000 and three notes of $150,000 each, payable at the end of one, two and three years, respectively. And the game was history."

Bobbie And His Pa

BY WILLIAM F. KIRK

I was jest thinking this eve, sed Pa, when he caim hoam last nite, I was jest thinking that another Vernil Spring is here already yet, sed Pa.

Already yet, sed Ma, ware do you git that Already Yet, Mister Swartzenhimer, sed Ma.

I shud say An-other Vernil Spring is in our Midst, sed Pa. I luv the Springtide, Pa sed, wen the little Lammerkins gamble on the greenswood, sed Pa.

I feel vary happy this Spring, sed Ma. The whole wurld is moar peeceful than it has been for many Springs, sed Ma, a bunch of sterling Republickans is on the job, Ma sed, and a air of Pros-parity rains over the land, sed Ma. Us wimmen had a good deel to do with this new pros-parity, too, sed Ma, for did we not vote for it?

Sure enuff you did, sed Pa. The noabel ladies, sed Pa, I toast them, the fair flours of creashun, sed Pa. Without them, sed Pa, the wurld wud be a Jungel, peepuld by wild men and wild beests, Pa sed. The noabel ladies, may thare shadows nevver grow less, Pa sed, but keep growing larger thru the years, like the shadow of my noabel wife, sed Pa.

Indeed, sed Ma, I was not awair that I was taking on flesh like that. I am sorry I am so fat in yure site, sed Ma. Ma was looking at Pa like she looks at a peddeler.

Spring is the seeson of growing, sed Pa, the seeson of new life and new buty, and eeven if you are growing a little in wideness, sed Pa, you are also growing moar deerer to me, Pa sed. That is a butiful thot, sed Pa, isent it, deerest, sed Pa. Pa was talking kind of fast and looking ten-der at Ma, he seen she was mad.

I have nothing further to say, sed Ma. Sumhow or other the talk laitly always years around to my plum-ness, Ma sed, and I am growing tired of it. Maybe after I am gone you can marry sum slim gurl, sed Ma.

You aint going to be gone, I sed, and Pa aint going to marry nobody but you, while I am around this here house, I sed. That goes, too, I sed.

Well, well, heer our little frail child speeking, sed Pa. What spirit he has, sed Pa, so like my own boyish spirrit forty yeers ago, sed Pa. He will be vary like me wen he grows up, sed Pa.

Parrish the thot, sed Ma.

What does that meen, Parrish the thot, I sed.

It meens that I want you to be a moar genteller man than yure father, Bobbie, sed Ma. If you happen to have a plump wife, sed Ma, nevver Twit her about it. Luv her for beeing jest as she is, Bobbie, sed Ma. Do not brake her hart by inches, sed Ma.

Here is my hankerchif if you are going to cry, sed Pa to Ma, but Pa looked kind of cheap and he had to Polygize to Ma good and plenty. Wimmen is funny and us men has to be cairful what we call them.

Written Round Albert Chevalier's Most Famous Coster Song
"MY OLD DUTCH"
Written by ARTHUR SHIRLEY and ALBERT CHEVALIER
A Famous Play. A Pathetic Story A Well-known Cast

"MY OLD DUTCH" is a rare picture, great in its simplicity, strong in its appeal, and splendidly played by its two principals. It is a story that might have come from between the covers of a Dickens, with his sunshine and shade, with its quaint type and its life.

ALSO SHOWING
Matinee On Saturday, April 23rd, at 4 p.m.
